Authorities Want to Question Former Egan Gangster About Chicago Alcohol Running Merger.

Miss Florence Powers, who said she was the wife of "Red" Powers, Egan gangster, appeared at the St. Louis Municipal Court today and claimed that she was under attack in the Supreme Court. Kiehl said that Director of Public Welfare Salisbury "may be a nice man, but he can't build an airport."

There isn't a city official, Kiehl continued, "who knows any more about building an airport than I know, and all I know is that I have been up in a plane twice. With our $2,000,000 bond issue, we were to build an airport, that would make St. Louis the hub of the nation's air lines, maintaining the superiority in aviation that accrued to us as a result of Lindbergh's flight, and there is no airport yet, and not a dime has been spent toward that end. And it's all because somebody wants to build an airport that don't know how."

"If we don't build the airport and build it promptly and well, the air traffic will go some other place."

"I hereby make a pledge that if I am elected Mayor I will appoint an expert airport commission and give it authority to retain an airport engineer to design our airport, and when that is done the work will have been placed in the hands of someone who knows something about it. It can't be done by a jack of all trades."

Prof. Pirquet of Vienna Had Lost Heavily Through Brother's-in-Law Suit.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, March 1.—Double suicide to escape sufferings of illness and financial reverses was the police explanation today of the death yesterday of Prof. Clemens Pirquet and his wife.

The bodies of the two were found in bed at their home. There were evidences of narcotics to indicate they had weighed life, found it wanting, and taken the drug, lying down together to die in each other's arms.

Prof. Pirquet, who developed a serum skin test for tuberculosis now in world-wide use and who was mentioned for the Austrian presidency in succession to former President Hainisch, recently had lost a suit involving heavy financial obligations to his brother-in-law. Before killing himself he sent his valuables and will to his lawyer for safekeeping. Mrs. Pirquet had been ill two months after an operation.

Police saw in these two things explanation of the suicide, which they at first thought to be death from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Taught at Johns Hopkins.
Pirquet was two years professor of pediatrics at Johns-Hopkins University in America. He was an internationally known authority on diseases of children. He was vice president of the American-Austrian Society and was connected with the relief administration of Herbert Hoover in Austria.

When he failed of election to the presidency after the retirement of Hainisch, he made plans with his wife to go to the United States to live.

The physician, who was 54 years old, was most popular in Austria because of his self-sacrificing labors and distinguished success in caring for the tubercular children of the republic. Many American doctors have studied at his famous "Kinderklinik." He was the author of several medical books.

Pirquet, in his youth desired to become a priest and studied theology. He later decided to devote his life to assuaging human suffering.

He was the son of Baron Peter Pirquet, a famous statesman of the old empire, and was born here. He is survived by two grown children, one of whom is a physician.

HUSBAND WED FOR SPITE
Mrs. Juanita Gehrin, 4266 Blair avenue, obtained a divorce from Thomas Gehrin in Circuit Judge Taylor's court of Domestic Relations yesterday after she had testified that her husband never lived with her and had told her on their wedding day that he had married her for spite.

They were married on April 10, 1928, and that afternoon Gehrin said, "I'm going to teach you a lesson. I've just married you to keep you from running around with anyone else," she testified. Then he left her and has not returned, Mrs. Gehrin said.

The pageant depicted the work of the various agencies. The winners represented the Social Service Exchange which employs them. In their presentation, Miss Murphy was a driver curbing two fractious horses, the sketch representing the manner in which the exchange deals with conflicting problems. Second prize was won by the International Institute, presenting another costume sketch. The award of prizes was based on novelty and ingenuity.

CONTRACTORS PUT UP MILLER FUND, SAYS J. S. LEAHY

Speaker Declares Largest Campaign Chest in History of City Has Been Raised for Mayor.

In a radio speech over station KWK, John S. Leahy, wealthy attorney, charged last night that "the largest amount of money that has ever been used in any election in this city" has been collected on behalf of Mayor Miller by donations from persons who got contracts to do municipal work or to write bonds for successful contractors.

"News has reached me," Leahy declared, "that a great slush fund is being raised by a few persons to thwart the will of the people and nominate Victor Miller for Mayor of this city. You read in the Post-Dispatch of the meeting of a few contractors to raise a fund to nominate Victor Miller. This meeting was presided over by a man whose company has written every bond given by a contractor in St. Louis during the last four years."

"Naturally, the people of St. Louis will inquire from whom Mr. Miller and his friends got the money to buy the advertising that is being done on his behalf. You will remember that when the representatives of the press made an inquiry of Mr. Miller and his friends as to the source of his campaign funds, they were informed that it was purely the business of Mr. Miller, and that he and his friends had a right to spend their money in the way they saw fit."

Necessity of Slush Fund.
"Undoubtedly every freeman has a right to spend his money as he sees fit, provided in so doing he is not guilty of an injustice to the community, the State or the nation. If the position of Mayor is subject to barter and sale, if the qualification for selection as Mayor is capacity to raise vast sums of money, then what becomes of the will of the people? What happens to our prized idea of liberty and democracy?"

A slush fund is only necessary when those seeking re-election know that their administration has been in opposition to the will and benefit of the people."

Defends Nolte.
Leahy defended the economy of Comptroller Nolte, declaring that Mayor Miller, when asked to explain the fact that the new courthouse and other improvements exceed estimates of cost, "took refuge in saying that the Comptroller and President of the Board of Aldermen had voted in favor of paying the amounts in excess of the estimates."

He criticized the Mayor for inaugurating a system of holding meetings of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment behind closed doors, suggesting that Miller's purpose was "to keep the people in ignorance with respect to the waste of their money."

Leahy concluded his talk with a review of the platform of former Mayor Kiel, emphasizing tax reduction, electrification of the Terminal Railway, the erection of water-front apartment houses, and the beautifying of downtown localities with playgrounds, parks and swimming pools.

Four men are still sought as members of the gang that did the actual shooting. Three of those are understood to be Stanley Novak, Danny Vallo and Rocco Belcastro.

The cases against Favis and Laverda have been continued until March 29.

Louise Rolfe Figured in Attempt to Beat Hotel Bill in St. Louis.

Mrs. Louise Rolfe, who is held in Chicago following her arrest with Jack McGurn in the St. Valentine's day gang murder investigation, figured in an escape in St. Louis when she and another woman attempted to evade the payment of a bill at the Forest Park Hotel in June, 1925.

Mrs. Rolfe, who said she was 19 at the time, had come here to attend the senior prom at Washington University. She and Miss Dorothy Burns, also of Chicago, had lived at several other hotels, had paid their bills and departed. Then when their bill at the Forest Park amounted to $110, they found themselves without funds. Miss Burns walked out of the hotel wearing three dresses and two coats, and Mrs. Rolfe climbed down the fire escape, only to find the hotel clerk waiting for her at the bottom.

Both were arrested and were taken to the Newstead Avenue Police Station, where they were held until the following day, when an attorney, who declined to reveal who had employed him, appeared and paid the hotel bill, and gave the girls train fare back to Chicago. The hotel declined to prosecute and the girls were released.

Mrs. Rolfe told reporters between puffs of a cigarette that she was a dancer by profession and had formerly attended the University of Illinois. Miss Burns, who was 29, said she was a former student at Northwestern University. The girls explained that they came to St. Louis to attend the prom and to "look for variety."

SECOND CHILD IN FAMILY DIES OF SPINAL MENINGITIS

Mabel Jennings, 14, Third Victim of Disease in St. Charles County in Week.

Mabel Jennings, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jennings of Harvester, Mo., near St. Charles, died yesterday of spinal meningitis. Her death was the third in a week due to meningitis in St. Charles County and occurred a week after that of her brother, Elmer, 17, who is thought to have contracted the disease from a workman at the rock quarry where he was employed. A 5-year-old boy in St. Charles died last Saturday.

The progress of the disease is believed to have been arrested in the Jennings family, two other children having fully recovered after treatment.

St. Charles County physicians met in St. Charles last Saturday and with State health officers discussed means of checking the spread of the disease.

The Union School at Harvester, closed two weeks ago when the Jennings children were stricken, will be reopened next week.

get in touch with my family if that is possible.

"I am now 18 and am finishing high school this year and I want to go to college. I feel if arrangements can be made, of course, I will have to work my way through, with little or no assistance from Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs, although I know they will help me in any way they can."

"As you perhaps know, we have always lived around small towns, and have no friends around the larger university towns who might help me in obtaining a position in which I could work my way through. That is why I am writing you, because I feel sure with your influence as State Superintendent you could surely help me solve my problem and assist me in securing a position in which I could work my way through."

Of course, if you have any valid reason for my not getting in touch with my sisters, you know best, and I will abide by it, but I would really like to hear from them."

A copy of Leon's letter was sent to Louise's guardian and to return he wrote to Leon:

"I feel that it is entirely natural, humane and proper that Louise become acquainted with the members of her family."

May Be Able to Help.
"My interest in Louise leads me to an interest in her family, and I am pleased indeed to see your interesting letter to Dr. Stahmann. It may also be that I can be of service in assisting you in securing the college education which is your worthy desire."

Louise is quite well at present. She is attending a good boarding school for girls in the South. She writes us every few days and is with us during vacation and on holidays.

"It may be possible that Mrs. Warden and I, with Louise, can arrange to meet you at some time during the coming vacation."

A copy of this letter is being sent to the Missouri Children's Home, which institution, I am sure, will always be highly held in your affections."

The meeting has been arranged. Next summer Louise and Leon will see each other for the first time in 12 years. The other sisters have not yet been reached.

SHOOTS MOTHER, STEPFATHER, IN ROW OVER DRINK

Mrs. Goldie Bowden Says Parent Got in Way When She Fired at John E. McQuarters.

A quarrel over a drink of whisky resulted in the shooting of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McQuarters by Mrs. Goldie Bowden, daughter of Mrs. McQuarters by a previous marriage, at their home, 1211 Morrison avenue, at 7 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Bowden, 37, a waitress, was wounded twice, in the face and abdomen. Her wife, 72, was shot in the chest. Both are at City Hospital.

Mrs. Bowden, 37, a waitress, was treated at the hospital for scalp lacerations, then was locked up at the Soudard Street Police Station.

"Mac has been abusing me for the last two weeks," she told police. "Last night I had three drinks of whisky with a roomer, Charles Houdart. Then I went to bed in my room."

"Mac came in my room after a while and said: 'Buy me that drink of whisky you promised me.' I said: 'No, I'm not going to get up now.' He nagged me about that drink and finally I ordered him to get out of the room. He refused and called me a lot of dirty names. I went into a front room to avoid him."

"Mac went into a back room and got a heavy laundry stick. Then he came in the front room and cracked me on the head with the stick. I went to a writing desk, obtained a revolver kept there and began shooting at him."

"Two of the shots I fired went wild, two hit Mac and the other hit my mother when she rose up from a chair where she had been sitting and ran between us to make peace."

Police on arriving at the residence found Mrs. Bowden seated beside her mother on the stairway, bathing her mother's face with a wet towel. McQuarters was lying on the floor of the front room. He accused his stepdaughter of firing the shots and she readily confessed.

The revolver, found under the icebox, and the laundry stick were held as evidence. Mrs. Bowden was booked for assault to kill.

"I hope Mac dies, even though I have to go to prison," Mrs. Bowden said. "But mother, I hope she gets well."

COOLIDGE AND PAT HARRISON SMOKE 'CIGARS OF PEACE'

Democratic Sharp Shooter Invites "His Friend" to Visit Mississippi.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 1.—President Coolidge and Pat Harrison of Mississippi, outstanding Democratic political sharpshooters in the Senate, smoked cigars at the White House today and agreed to let bygones be bygones.

In a happy mood on the eve of his retirement, the President let the host of Republican officeholders calling to say goodbye wait while he and his Democratic foe hurried the past and looked to the future as friends.

The Mississippi Democrat asked the President to come down to Mississippi one of these days and fish and hunt.

Mr. Coolidge indicated he wished to do that. The President recalled that he had visited every State in the Union except three—Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas—and that he wanted to see them.

I just called to tell the President that, while the Republican hosts are looking ahead to Mr. Hoover and his administration, that I as a Democrat wanted to call and say goodbye to him," said Harrison. "I regard Mr. Coolidge as my friend. He has always been very courteous to me and I like him."

GEORGE F. BAKER MAKES $31,000,000 IN THREE DAYS

That Is Increase in Market Value of His Bank Stock, Now Selling at $71.00.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 1.—The stock of the First National Bank again went soaring today, adding $600 to its $920 advance of the last two days. It sold in the "over the counter" market at a new high record price of $71.00.

The sensational rise in the stock of this bank began with the brisk upturn in bank stocks generally on the announcement of the Guaranty Trust Bank of Commerce $2,000,000,000 merger early this week.

George F. Baker, who will be 89 years old this month, is chairman of the bank and has built it up from humble beginnings. He is said to hold 20,000 of the 100,000 shares of stock. If this is true, his holdings have increased in market value $31,000,000 in three days.

The bank's capitalization is but $10,000,000, in contrast to surplus and undivided profits of $2,684,000 and deposits of $450,360,360.

Five Officers Help Serve Divorce Paper

Noisy Scene Occurs at Woman's Apartment When Man Tries to Seize Child.

Two women Deputy Sheriffs, an irate husband, a private detective and two policemen arrived in close succession yesterday afternoon at the apartment of Mrs. Nan Kinsack, 4294 West Pine boulevard, where a noisy domestic scene threw the building into a half hour of excitement.

The net result was that Mrs. Kinsack was served with a subpoena to answer the divorce suit of Philip T. Kinsack, art director for Purina Mills, who seeks a divorce on the grounds of general indignities.

The deputies arrived at 4 o'clock and were admitted by Mrs. Kinsack, in negligee, with her 4-year-old daughter, Jean Phyllis, at her side. Mrs. Kinsack took the summons and threw it on the floor as her husband appeared suddenly in the apartment. "Give me my child," he demanded.

Kinsack chased the child about the apartment while his wife sought to deter him. Then a private detective, employed by Kinsack, burst in, seized the girl and started out. Mrs. Kinsack screamed and the detective turned back. Kinsack ran to the sidewalk, found a patrolman and summoned him to the apartment. Mrs. Kinsack, meanwhile telephoned headquarters and demanded an officer.

The two policemen arrived simultaneously. They surveyed the situation and coldly eyed the two deputies. "Who are these dames?" one of them demanded. "We're Deputy Sheriffs," the two replied in unison.

"I don't see anything for us to do here," said the policeman. His companion nodded assent. Together they marched out. The women deputies marched out, and presently Kinsack and his detective followed. Mrs. Kinsack was left in possession of her child and a subpoena.

"I don't want to be elected Mayor if I have to be elected because city employees are afraid of losing their bread and butter. No decent man would want to be elected under those conditions."

"Furthermore, an order has been issued stating that no one shall solicit funds for this campaign from any city employees. Yet I have read photostatic copies of an affidavit that tells how eight years ago they collected money from the scrub women in the City Hall. That can be produced."

Kiel Promises, If Elected, to Enforce Expert to Plan Airport.

Former Mayor Kiel, in his majority primary campaign speech at Carpenter's Hall, Grand boulevard and Easton avenue, last night, attacked Mayor Miller for delay in construction of the municipal airport, and pledged himself, if elected, to act promptly in appointing an airport commission, to employ an expert engineer for the work. He renewed his attack on Miller for the excess cost of the street lighting system over the $3,000,000 bond issue allotment.

Kiel said that a year had passed since the airport bonds were voted. The actual time has been nearly seven months, during the greater part of which time the validity of the bonds was under attack in the Supreme Court. Kiel said that Director of Public Welfare Salisbury "may be a nice man, but he can't build an airport."

Promised to Hire Expert.
"There isn't a city official," Kiel continued, "who knows any more about building an airport than I know, and all I know is that I have been up in a plane twice. 5-Year Dry Law Penalty Bill Sent to President

the higher penalties were needed if enforcement was to be made effective against big bootleggers.

"The gentleman from New York (O'Connor)," said Moore, "told us yesterday that he was against the Eighteenth Amendment. Therefore he is against the Constitution of the United States."

A chorus of groans from the wet greeted the remark.

Moore asserted that the vast majority of the members of the House believed in the dry laws and observed them. (Loud applause from the dries.) He said that the rum traffic had "debauched manhood and prostituted womanhood," that prohibition was "a noble effort," and that the young people of today, despite all the aspersions that had been cast upon them, were "the most sober young people and the brightest and the best that have lived in any age or climate."

Deal Assails Measure.
Representative Deyl (Dem.), Virginia, went to the bat for the opposition. He said that other provisions of the Constitution were just as sacred as the Eighteenth Amendment.

"I rise to demand," he said, "that we respect the provisions regarding double jeopardy, the right of trial by jury, and cruel and unusual punishments. All these have been violated by prohibition agents in their attempts to enforce the dry laws."

Stalker (Rep.), New York, who helped to draw the bill, said that the difficulty in the way of enforcement was due largely to the present insufficient penalties. Some of the cities, he added, had ordinances providing a greater penalty for spitting on the sidewalks than the present penalties under the Volstead act. Stalker called attention to the indorsement of the bill by the dry organizations.

Combs (Dem.), Kansas City, who is about to retire from Congress, described the bill as a "sloppy and shoddy" piece of legislation because of its failure to draw a distinction among different degrees of law-breaking.

On the other side, Cramton (Rep.), Michigan, one of the leading dries, pictured Tammany as having been thrown into a state of "dismay" by the bill.

Stobbs (Rep.), Massachusetts, a member of the Judiciary Committee, condemned the bill as poorly drawn and altogether too drastic. He predicted that it would defeat its own purposes.

"Under this bill," he said, "you are wiping out all distinctions between misdemeanors and felonies at one fell swoop."

Michigan (Rep.), Michigan, conceded that the bill was loosely worded, but called for its passage without the dotting of an "i," so that its final approval might not be delayed.

"The Department of Justice has asked for this bill as it stands," he said. "The Senate has put in some amendments, but they don't mean anything—they are perfectly innocuous."

The debate waxed steadily more vociferous and at times the House was in an uproar.

O'Connor (Dem.), New York, pointed to F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, who was seated in the gallery during the debate, and called him "the super-president of the United States."

Black (Dem.), New York, damned the measure as "the last word in legislative ineptitude."

"It is written," said Black, "in the ink of intolerance with the pen of puritanism. It suggests Lord Jeffreys, Bluebeard, and the slave galley. Mesmerized by prohibition potentates, Congress would bring about a reign of terror in America. If we had a guillotine working overtime on every public square, we could not enforce prohibition."

"I say, glory to Judges Brennan and Murphy of Detroit, who refuse to impose life imprisonment on prohibition violators. If Michigan could only send us more Murphys and Brennans instead of Cramtons and Hudsons, such laws as these would not see daylight."

"According to this act, the Master himself would go to jail for five years for the miracle at Cana. This is a bill for the shake-down racketeers clothed with official power and the blessing of the Anti-Saloon League."

"What about the Hoover commission? Are you afraid to let Hoover experiment with the noble experiment? Have the dries lost faith in their champion even though he has forgotten the good services of Col. Donovan? Have they moral biliousness waiting for the millennium?"

Amendments to the bill were shouted down one after another, and then came the final passage by a roll call vote.

POINTS OUT KIEL IS BUILDING CONTRACTOR

W. R. Orthwein Wonders How Private Business Would Influence Official Acts.

Speculation on former Mayor Kiel's large business as a building contractor and the question of how much of this business might have been due to his official acts was the outstanding point in a speech last night by William R. Orthwein, chairman of the Anti-Change Administration Committee. He followed Mayor Miller at a primary campaign rally at Concordia Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Arsenal streets.

Orthwein said that Kiel, as Mayor, showed himself "adroit, but lazy, and totally lacking when it comes to constructive intellect." He said that Kiel, in this campaign, had become a "mountain-bank, champion mud slinger of the city, and knocker of his own party, condemned even by his campaign manager, E. Happy Day." Day, who is manager of Kiel's Holland building headquarters, has denied a purported interview in the St. Louis Star in which he was quoted in criticizing Kiel's campaign methods.

"Why doesn't Kiel tell," Orthwein demanded, "how, before he became Mayor and when he was on the City Committee, he procured the brick contracts for so many public buildings? Why doesn't he explain whenever a permit was gotten for a big building during his administration, why he repeatedly got the brick contracts from the man who was building it?"

"Let him explain to you why he got the contracts on so many big buildings since he left office, and how as a bidder he was ready to take the contract on the Court-house, even though the administration was exceeding the appropriation?"

"Let him tell you about those meetings that have been held recently in a certain broker's office, not many hundred feet from my own office, and at which all his inner circle, including John E. Leahy, have been present."

"Passed back to Nolte," "Are they trying to steal Vic Miller's rapid transit idea, or is it another bridge trade? Why doesn't he tell you about all his relatives and their political appointments, and his scheme to have the Democrats enter the primary and nominate him?"

"Why doesn't he tell you how and why he spent only two or three hours a day at his desk and let Bill Findly, his secretary, run his business, and how he always passed the buck along to Louis Nolte on all appropriations and dodged every responsibility whenever he could?"

"Extravagance? How about the 400 or 500 employees who used to attend the ball game every day during his administration, and then there's that statement to the Bricklayers' Union that the practice of giving the inmates of the Workhouse fresh air and exercise by using them in parks and thus saving taxes, was wrong because they competed with honest men; as a matter of fact, Nelson Cuniff, again one of Kiel's chief backers, used these inmates on River des Peres in Forest Park for quite some time, also for digging trenches at Fort Bellefonaine."

"Why doesn't he tell you about trying to build the garbage incinerator at Kingshighway boulevard and De Tonty street, or about the incinerator he built at the foot of Chouteau avenue, which cost more than $100,000 and functioned about a year and had to be abandoned finally, as the grates continually burned out?"

"We Have to Get Henry Back," "Why does he tell you he gave up the job for business reasons, and then, when he speaks before the Young Men's Hebrew Association, says he quit for Mr. Aloe, and how much did he do to help nominate Mr. Aloe?"

"I have watched things with interest, since the day Charles Herentstein met me at the door of the Hostmen's Bank Building, about a month after Mayor Miller took office, and excitedly said, 'Bill, we have to get to work and get Henry back in there.'"

"I have watched since that time a steady propaganda by the ex-Mayor's supporters to discredit everything this administration has done and to push the ex-Mayor forward on every occasion, whether it was the Chamber of Commerce, the Municipal Opera, the German House, or any other organization, all with a view of making you forget the political type of administration he gave you, and the kind of a Mayor he made, and try to make you believe that his activities as a private citizen were like those as Mayor, which any informed man or woman knows is not the fact."

HOUSE APPROVES NICARAGUA CANAL SURVEY MEASURE

Bill Giving Authority for $150,000 Fund Included in Deficiency Legislation Is Passed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The House today passed a bill to give legislative authority for the appropriation of $150,000 for a survey of the proposed Nicaraguan Canal route. The money for this purpose is incorporated in the pending second deficiency bill. The Senate already has passed a measure similar to the one approved today by the House.

The House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, to which the resolution was referred after it passed the Senate early this week, yesterday entirely re-wrote the measure. The original resolution was primarily for a survey of a proposed route across Nicaragua by way of the San Juan River and the Great Lake of Nicaragua. The amended resolution makes no mention of the proposed Nicaraguan route and instructs the President, through the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers, to investigate the need for additional facilities on the Panama Canal, and secondarily authorizes an investigation of "any other route for a ship canal between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans."

The House resolution provides, however, that the surveying commission shall revise and bring down to date the 1901 report on the Nicaraguan Canal and report on the approximate cost of constructing and maintaining such a canal.

The Hawes amendment providing for the optional appointment of civilian engineers on the investigating commission was retained in the House resolution. The Commerce Committee struck out the Edge provision authorizing the President to enter into negotiations with Central American States concerned to determine whether they had an interest in the proposed canal.

FREIGHTER SUNK TO AVOID WRECKING TOLEDO, O., BRIDGE

Boat Swept From Moorings Upstream and Borne Down River by Force of Ice Pack.

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., March 1.—The freighter W. C. Richardson was sunk here last night to avert destruction of a bridge.

Swept from her moorings upstream, the freighter threatened the Cherry street bridge as it was borne down the Maumee River by the force of an ice pack. When the vessel grounded several hundred yards above the bridge, Harbor Master Clarence La Beat opened the locks and the Richardson and she was sunk.

Two other ships which were moored with the Richardson are to be flooded to prevent their being carried away when an ice gorge forming above the city breaks. The water will be pumped out of the vessels before the opening of spring navigation.

25 ELECTRIC MARKERS TURNED ON AT LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD

The temporary electric field markers at Lambert-St. Louis field were turned on for the first time last night.

The system, installed by the City Lighting Department, comprises 25 lights of 100-candlepower each, with frosted globes. The lights are mounted on two-foot pipes, spaced 200 feet apart, and are connected by underground cable. It was necessary to drill through 18 inches of frozen ground to lay the cable. The system, including red hazard lights on buildings, is operated by a time clock.

An illuminated wind cone is now being installed on top of the recently completed field manager's office on the west side of the field. The temporary system, part of which can be incorporated into the permanent lighting program now being planned, cost approximately $4000.

INQUIRY SOUGHT INTO LICENSING OF FOUR DOCTORS

Governor Asked to Take Up Issue of Certificates of 'Graduates of Unchartered School.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 1.—An investigation of the action of the State Board of Health in issuing licenses to practice medicine to four graduates of an unchartered medical school, is under consideration by Gov. Caulfield, and also by Senator Casey, president pro tem of the Senate, as a result of request for an inquiry filed with the Governor by the Missouri State Medical Association.

A protest made to the Governor by the association several days ago has been taken up for consideration. The Governor summoned Dr. James Stewart, secretary of the board, to his office and discussed the matter briefly with him. Just what trend the investigation will take has not been disclosed by the Governor, who said last night that he was not ready to discuss it.

One course said to be under consideration is the summoning of the entire board to explain the circumstances under which the licenses were issued. Another might be the summoning of a few members, and a third the selection of a competent authority to go exhaustively into the subject.

Licensed in Arkansas Also.
The action complained of by the medical association is the licensing of Dr. Louis C. Schneider of Kansas City, Mo., Dr. E. C. Tubel of Kansas City, Kan., and Dr. B. T. Colglazier and Dr. Vera E. Kenney of Joplin. All are said to be graduates of the Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery, the charter of which was revoked by the Supreme Court in 1923. They were licensed in Missouri under a reciprocity section of the law, permitting the board to issue licenses to practitioners of other states having educational requirements equal to those of Missouri. The four were licensed in Arkansas, with which Missouri has a reciprocal understanding.

It had been the policy of the Missouri board not to license graduates of medical colleges which did not meet certain standards set by the board.

When asked about the medical association's request for an investigation, Gov. Caulfield said he had received it and that he would give it very careful consideration.

Senator Casey said individual members of the association had directed his attention to the issuing of the four licenses, though no formal protest had been filed with him.

"I have under consideration a Senate investigation of the matter," he said, "but I believe it probably could be handled more easily by the Governor. The action of the board appears to be in direct violation of its known policies, and, in my opinion, is of such serious character that it justifies inquiry.

"A legislative investigation means much red tape, the summoning of witnesses and many delays. I feel sure that everybody would be satisfied with an investigation by the Governor, who could make it quickly."

The Kansas City College of Medicine and Surgery was one of the schools reported upon by Dr. F. C. Walte of Western Reserve University of Cleveland, who made a survey of medical conditions in Missouri for the State Board of Health in 1925. Regarding it Dr. Walte said the graduates "knew it to be inefficient, or were such hopeless morons they have no place in the medical profession."

The members of the Board of Health are: Dr. W. A. Clark of Jefferson City, president; Dr. H. L.

Kerr of Crane, vice president; Dr. James Stewart of Jefferson City, secretary and State Health Commissioner; Dr. H. S. Gove of Linn; Dr. Willard Bartlett of St. Louis; Dr. H. A. Brofogle of Kansas City. There is one vacancy, caused by the recent resignation of Dr. E. T. McGaugh of Richmond.

The terms of all members expire Sept. 25 and all places on the board will be open to be filled by Gov. Caulfield at that time.

Rain Causes Flood in Azores Port.

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, March 1.—A terrific rainstorm causing floods which destroyed roads and cut all communications at Angra was reported last night from the Azores. The water entered many homes and did heavy damage. Angra is the seat of Terceira Island of the Azores group.

30 DAYS FOR WOMAN BEER FLAT OPERATOR

Mrs. Erma Degenhart Pleads Guilty to Three Counts of Sale of Liquor.

Mrs. Erma Degenhart, 45 years old, who operated a home-brew flat at 5805 Delmar boulevard, was sentenced by Federal Judge Davis today to 30 days in jail at Union, Mo., and fined $400, on her plea of guilty of three counts of sale of intoxicating liquor. Prohibition agents testified they made several visits to Mrs. Degenhart's flat and purchased beer at 25 cents a can. She was one of eight liquor law violators who pleaded guilty today.

Fred W. Buekrus, saloonkeeper at 9201 South Broadway, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $800 on two counts of sale and possession.

Edward Witte, 5800 South Broadway, who, Judge Davis remarked, was "probably a competitor of Buekrus in the slaking of thirsts in that vicinity," was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $400 on five counts of sale and possession.

Dan M. Kihue, who pleaded that he was forced into a job as a bartender at 5872 Delmar boulevard by unemployment and who professed to be working now at odd but honest jobs, was fined $400 for the sale of two highballs to dry agents. "I'll take a chance on you," Judge Davis said when Kihue begged to be let off with a fine. Charles Valoni, charged with sale, pleaded through his attorney that he had sold his saloon at Pevely, Mo., and bought a small farm. "Have you investigated to see if your client has put up a large still on his small farm," the court inquired. "No, I did not do that," was the reply. Valoni was sentenced to 60 days in jail.

Missouri Lady Knew the Way

Every mother knows what it means when her child begins to get underweight, pale, listless, bilious, feverish and fretful, with bad breath, coated tongue and no appetite. What every one of them doesn't know is that it's dangerous to use harsh methods to start the little stomach and bowels.

There's no use experimenting in such cases. Millions of mothers have proved the merit and reliability of pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable California Fig Syrup. It gently clears up the most stubborn cases of constipation; stimulates the appetite; gives tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels so they continue to act normally, of their own accord; and makes pale, lifeless children bright, rosy-cheeked and full of energy.

A Missouri mother, Mrs. A. E. Cox, Valley Park, says: "My little girl, Loraine, developed constipation. She became bilious, pale and fretful; had no appetite and couldn't digest right. I had taken California Fig Syrup as a child, so I gave it to her. It regulated her quick. She began eating heartily and digesting everything. Soon she was her robust, happy self again."

Ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 25 years.

The Utah Dynamic Power Speaker is guaranteed by the manufacturer and by Nugents to give complete satisfaction.

10 OF MEXICANS WHO KILLED TWO AMERICANS SLAIN

Two Others of Bandit Band Captured in Fight With Federal Troops in State of Guanajuato.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—Ten Mexicans have paid with their lives for the murder of W. M. Underwood and G. C. Alsthorpe, American mining executives, in the State of Guanajuato.

Two others today faced summary action by court-martial and probable execution. Troops were in pursuit of the remainder of the band.

The military commander of the State of Guanajuato reported to the chief of the presidential staff here that Federal troops yesterday encountered the bandit group which kidnapped and killed the two Americans and in a two-hour battle killed 10 of them, capturing two others. Six were killed in a previous battle.

One Federal soldier was killed in yesterday's encounter.

Alsthorpe and Underwood were kidnapped from their bunk at the Guanajuato mines Wednesday of last week. A ransom of $7500 was demanded for their release. This was paid to an intermediary and was being carried to the bandits when Federal troops attacked them, killing six.

Presumably in retaliation for the attack the two Americans were killed, their bodies being found near the scene of the battle by pursuing troops.

Ambassador Morrow made formal representations to the Mexican Foreign Office and was assured no efforts were being spared to run down the perpetrators of the offense.

DIVORCES MAN SECOND TIME, HAD REWED HIM LAST AUGUST
Mrs. Frank C. Harte Obtained First Decree in July After Seven Years of Marriage.

Mrs. Dewell Harte, 1243 Hawthorne boulevard, Richmond Heights, who divorced Frank C. Harte, a salesman, last July 19, and was remarried to him six weeks later, again divorced him today at Clayton. She received custody of an 18-month-old son. General indignities constituted the grounds of each suit. Today's decree was entered by default, Harte not appearing in court.

"I remarried my husband," Mrs. Harte testified, "when he came to me with the plea that he had changed his ways and had stopped drinking. I did it for the sake of the baby. But since then he has come home late at night several times a week. He was drinking. When he would come in as late as 2 o'clock in the morning he would insist that I prepare a meal for him."

As she spoke, Mrs. Harte, a comely woman of 35, wept and several times had to pause to regain her self-control. Continuing, she said: "My husband was impatient with the child. He said he was nervous and too old to be bothered by a baby." Harte is about 45.

They were first married in St. Louis, Nov. 21, 1921. They separated June 3, 1928, and, after the first divorce, also granted in Clayton, remarried Aug. 30, in St. Louis, separating again Jan. 3.

TY HAD RIGHT TO USE CONDUITS, KIEL MAN SAYS

Company Had Waived Restrictions on Putting Light Cables in Its Ducts, Hallock Avers.

The matter of the Miller administration's expenditure for downtown laying of electric light cables, which was mentioned in former Mayor Kiel's speech last night, is subject of a statement issued today at Kiel's campaign office in the Ambassador Building by Ross Hallock, office manager.

Hallock replied to a statement which Mayor Miller said that Mayor Kiel's ordinance prohibited that privately owned conduits might be used only for the cables and fire alarm telephone and graph wires. Miller also said that cables could not be put in the same ducts with telephone cables. Hallock said the ducts which should have been used were those occupied by telephone cables but those of the Union Electric Co., which were open to the public.

Mayor Miller should read the city ordinances carefully before he attempts to instruct former Mayor Kiel as to what it contains. Mayor Miller evidently considers pointing out the Kiel administration accomplishments as slinging mud at the Miller administration. The point that the Kiel plan would have cost $100,000 less for conduits is an accomplishment, showing the alertness and familiarity with ordinances passed when Mayor Miller was 7 years old.

Explains Keyes Ordinance.
In the first place, the Kiel plan is not contemplate installation of street lighting cables in the city's ducts and telephone conduits, because those ducts are already occupied by fire and police cables.

The Keyes ordinance contemplated installation of cables only in conduits in which high tension wires already in use.

"It is true, under the Keyes ordinance ducts built for the city were designated for police and fire alarm telephone and telegraph systems. This clause, applied to conduits of power companies, prohibits their use for any purpose whatsoever, since it would be exceedingly bad practice to place telephone cables in the same conduits with high tension wires.

The power companies, realizing this clause was more or less a bar, readily agreed to waive the restrictions. This waiver is on file, or was, in the City Hall.

Other Cables in Private Conduits.
So far as having street lighting cables under control of private enterprises (as the Mayor suggested he objected to having)—if this is really a serious menace, had not better take immediate steps to remove the fire and police telegraph cables out of such conduits.
These are of infinite more importance to the safety of the city than street lighting cables.

A further relief from this menace of private control over the underground cables lies in another clause of the Keyes ordinance, which provides that at any time
the city sees fit, it may condemn and purchase any or all conduits in the downtown districts.

Perhaps the Mayor had better study the Keyes ordinance a little before condemning the use of facilities built for and now owned by the city under its terms.

These conduits cannot be used or removed or altered without consent of the city.

"The plan to use these city-owned vacant ducts was confined to the downtown district, where such ducts are available, and where the building of new ones is an exceedingly expensive operation. It was not contemplated to use city-owned ducts in utility conduits in the residential district, because they virtually do not exist.

This discussion was limited strictly to the downtown lighting system alone."

"According to the plans of the Kiel administration, more than $1,000,000 would have been saved in the downtown lighting system
alone."

DR. M. A. BLISS DENIES OFFER TO SERVE STATE AT $1 A YEAR

Story Was Based Apparently on Remark in Debate by Representative Wallace.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 1.—
Gov. Caulfield received a telegram yesterday from Dr. M. A. Bliss of St. Louis, denying a report, contained in news dispatches "from Jefferson City, that he was willing to assume the post of State Health Supervisor in the Missouri elementary institutions at a salary of $1 a year.

Dr. Bliss said it would be impossible for him to accept the post on such condition. He said the supervisor, who must be a skilled psychiatrist, should devote all his time to the work and should receive the full compensation.

Gov. Caulfield said he did not know the source of the report that Dr. Bliss would serve as supervisor for $1 a year and that no such statement had been transmitted to him. The Governor said he had hoped Dr. Bliss would accept an appointment on the Board of Managers of the eleemosynary institutions because of his extensive experience in such work.

The report that Dr. Bliss would serve as supervisor for $1 a year apparently was based upon a remark by Dr. C. H. Wallace, representative from Buchanan County, in discussing a bill to increase the salary of the Board of Managers, that he understood Dr.

Bliss would be willing to devote part of his time to the supervisor's work in an advisory capacity, if a member of the board, at the $1 a year compensation.

This remark was made in suggesting that no increased expense would arise from increasing the annual salary of the president of the board from $4000 to $5000 because the salary of the supervisor, now $4500 a year, could be eliminated.

GRAND JURY FAILS TO INDICT DRIVER IN POLICEMAN'S DEATH

No Action Taken Against Philip Muehlhaeusler After Inquiry in Accident.

Philip Muehlhaeusler, of 144W
Russell avenue, whose automobile collided with a police machine Jan.
30, fatally injuring Policeman Roy E. Berry, was not indicted by the grand jury which considered his case yesterday.

The accident occurred at Jefferson avenue and Lynch street when the police car, speeding south on Jefferson in pursuit of a speeder, was struck by Muehlhaeusler's machine being driven east on Lynch street.

The police car, driven by Policeman Ross Boelling, was not equipped with any special warning device to indicate its official use.

Sirens have since been placed on automobiles of the Police Department.

MISSOURI HOUSE VOTES TO EXECUTE BOMBERS

Bill Aimed at Extortionists Passes, 118 to 0—Goes to Senate.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 1.—The death penalty for persons convicted of bombing is provided in a bill passed by the Missouri House of Representatives yesterday. It now goes to the Senate.

The bill, aimed at extortionists and gangsters operating in St. Louis, Kansas City and other Missouri cities, was introduced by Representative J. Marvin Krause of St. Louis. The vote on final passage of the measure was 118 for and none against.

Any person who uses a bomb or other explosive which causes the death of any person or places any person in danger of death, would be guilty of violation of the law. The minimum sentence would be 30 years imprisonment.

The Legislature two years ago passed a law providing for the death penalty for persons convicted of highway robbery while armed with a deadly weapon. Bills are pending in both houses to provide more stringent punishment for arson, another weapon of the extortionists.

TWO SUSPECTS IN BANK ROBBERY FREE THIRD IN JAIL

Pair Seize Warden at Mount Vernon, Mo., and Force Him to Liberate Calvin S. Powell.

MOUNT VERNON, Mo., March 1.—Calvin S. Powell, 19 years old, held here in connection with the robbery of the Bank of Marionville, Mo., last Feb. 9, was liberated from the jail here last night by two men identified as Mangell Rinker and Richard J. Kneist of St. Louis, also sought in connection with the robbery.

Lloyd Davis, 50, also held for the robbery, and six other prisoners serving terms for minor offenses, refused to leave their cells when the men forced Jailer Dave Jeffords to free Powell and then locked Jeffords and his wife and four children in other cell.

Speeding into Mount Vernon, Rinker and Kneist first went to the telephone company's office, apparently to destroy communication with outside points. Miss Helen Smith, the operator, a daughter of Lon Smith, Lawrence County Deputy Sheriff, refused to unlock the door leading to the room containing the switchboard, and the men left for the jail.

There they awakened Jeffords and his family, ordering the jailer to liberate Powell and Davis, asserting that they would "kill everyone in the jail" if he refused.

Jeffords complied and Powell came out of his cell, urging Davis and the six others to do likewise, but they refused.

Then Powell shook hands with the jailer.

"Goodbye," he said. "I appreciate the way you treated both of us."

Jeffords identified Rinker and Kneist from their photographs. The Marionville Bank was robbed by four men who spent the previous night at the home of R. C. Turrentine, cashier, standing guard over him and his wife in their bedroom after they learned that the vault was protected by a trap door.

At daylight the cashier was forced to go to the bank with two of the men while the others remained to guard Mrs. Turrentine and a nurse. After taking the money from the vault the men took Turrentine back to his home, locked the captives in a closet and fled in an automobile.

Both Powell and Davis are residents of Lawrence County. They were arrested a few days after the robbery and brought to the county jail here.

Police Asked to Hunt for Powell and His Liberators.

St. Louis police have been asked by Mount Vernon authorities to be on the lookout for Powell and his liberators who, it is thought, may have driven toward St. Louis.

Powell was paroled last year from the Booneville Reformatory after serving 16 months for highway robbery. Following his arrest in St. Louis and identification as one of the Marionville bank robbers, he confessed and named his brother-in-law, Rinker, as one of his accomplices.

Rinker was discharged last Christmas eve from the State Penitentiary after serving two years for attempted robbery. Kneist, police records show, served one year for robbery in St. Louis County.

LESCHEN TO HEAD CAMPAIGN FOR FUND TO GET CONVENTIONS

Rope Manufacturer to Be Chairman of Committee Seeking $150,000 for Work of Bureau.

Harry J. Leschen, rope manufacturer, has been named general chairman of the campaign to raise $150,000 for the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau. It was announced yesterday at campaign headquarters.

Leschen said in a prepared statement that additional resources were needed by the bureau, which seeks to bring conventions to St. Louis, because of the highly competitive nature of its activity. So strong is competition, he said, that conventions rarely meet in cities which do not solicit them.

He stressed the fact that the entire city benefits by conventions, pointing out that the money spent by delegates stimulates many businesses, and visitors frequently are attracted by the city's advantages enough to locate industries here.

Others like the city so well they make it their permanent home, he stated. Nearly 200 State and national conventions are held here annually.

The remainder of the campaign personnel will be announced within a few days. Industries and individuals will be solicited for subscriptions.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY MILLER SAYS HE WILL STOP CRIME

Tells Young Business Men He Will Finish What He Starts.

Circuit Attorney Miller outlined the duties of citizenship in an address last night before a group of young business men who form the Sandwich Forum of the Y. M. C. A.

"If you start a prosecution through my office, you can be sure it will be carried through," he asserted. "It is the business of the Circuit Attorney's office to stop crime and we are going about it in a business-like way."

In his address, Miller declared that St. Louis should have 2 or 30 Circuit Judges instead of the 16 bench.

BOSWELL TURNS FARMER, BELL A CLERK AT FEDERAL PRISON

MARION, Ill., March 1.—Former State's Attorney Arlie O. Boswell of Williamson County has turned farmer, according to information received here this week from the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., where Boswell is now -serving a two-year sentence for conspiracy to violate the Federal prohibition act. Former Coroner George Bell, who is serving a one-year term for the same offense, having been convicted in Federal Court at East St. Louis with Boswell, is now a clerk in the prison workhouse where the denim uniforms of the prisoners are made.

STEWART ANSWERS CHARGE OF COERCION

Says Employees of No Other Company Are as Independent as Those of Standard.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 1.—Col. Robert W. Stewart struck back today at the Rockefeller Proxy Committee because of its last statement claiming 57 per cent of the stock of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and charging employees were voting for Stewart in order to hold their jobs.

The statement, said the chairman of the board of directors, was "merely another manifestation of the amazing ignorance of these men concerning the affairs of the company of which they are trying to seize control. Either that, or it is another instance of willingness to disseminate false statements in their effort to deceive the stockholders into voting against me."

"If they are as ignorant of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana affairs as their statement would indicate, they certainly are unfit to dictate how the company should be run. If their misstatements are born not of ignorance but of deceit, they are equally unfit."

The statement issued by Winthrop Aldrich, representing John D. Rockefeller Jr., who is attempting to oust Stewart, said that many of the 18,000 Standard Oil employees would have signed Rockefeller proxies had they not been afraid of losing their jobs.

To that Stewart replied: "Instead of 18,000 employees who own stock in the company and are qualified voters, the actual number is only 7918. Knowing a tremendous majority of the stockholders have signed proxies in favor of me, they endeavored to deceive the stockholders by indicating many of these were executed by employees afraid of losing their jobs."

Explains Industrial Plan. Stewart explained the industrial relations plan under which the company's manufacturing department has operated for 10 years. Employees' councils, elected by secret ballot, pass on all matters of employees' welfare, including discharges. If the management overrules any decision of the councils, the matter may be appealed, at the company's expense, to the Department of Labor in Washington, whose decision is binding.

"The employees of no other company in the world are as independent ent and free from coercion as the employees of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana," said Stewart.

"No doubt the Rockefeller committee, ignorant as it is of the company's affairs, does not understand the situation. As several companies controlled by the Rockefeller family have 'industrial relations plans,' they no doubt think that the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana plan is like those of the Rockefeller-controlled institutions. It is not."

"None of the Rockefeller companies has the provision for an appeal to the Department of Labor, which is the real test of whether an employee-council plan is founded in equity or is a mere sop thrown to the employees."

Employ Councils for Him. Stewart said every one of the employee-councils had adopted resolutions, by unanimous vote, supporting him, and 99.67 per cent of the 7918 employees had executed proxies in his favor.

The Rockefeller statement claimed possession of the proxies of 16,000 stockholders. Stewart said he had the proxies of twice that number and the mails brought in hundreds more every day. Of the 27,873 stockholders in the middle West, 23,799 had executed proxies in his favor, Stewart said.

FRANCE LIMITS U. S. FILMS

Americans Must Buy One French Picture for Each Three They Export.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, March 1.—Under a new regulation which goes tomorrow to the Minister of Public Instruction who is expected to approve it, American exporters of motion pictures to France will be required to accept one French film for every three American pictures shown in France. The regulation is more stringent than had been expected as the ratio was expected to be four to one instead of the present ratio of seven to one.

Representatives of the French syndicate have informed American film houses: "Now it is up to you, if you have any offers to make." This it is understood refers to a

SAYS TEXAN SOLICITED FUNDS FOR CAMPAIGN

Creager, Before Senate Group, Accuses Wurzbach of Canvassing U. S. Employees.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—H. C. Creager, Republican National Committeeman for Texas, charged before the Senate Patronage Committee today that Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, only Republican member of Congress from Texas, had violated the penal law by "collecting contributions" for his campaign.

Wurzbach entered a categorical denial of all of the charges and asserted that he had "never solicited a dollar" in his life.

"In the campaign of 1926," Creager said, "while a Congressman and a candidate for re-election to Congress, Wurzbach received contributions for his campaign from at least four officers and employees of the United States."

Says U. S. Employees Gave.

"On June 28, 1926, Wurzbach received a campaign contribution of $100 from H. M. Holden, at the time United States Attorney at Poston, Tex.

"July 22, 1926, Wurzbach received a campaign contribution of $100 from S. C. Kyle, at the time District director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, stationed at San Antonio, Tex.

"July 8, 1926, Wurzbach received $25 as a campaign contribution from H. F. Geyer, of San Antonio, Tex., who at the time was a railway clerk of the United States.

"July 8, 1926, Wurzbach received $50 as a campaign contribution from E. J. Keudell, of San Antonio, Tex., who at the time was a railway mail clerk of the United States.

Offers Check as Evidence. "Aug. 16, 1924, Wurzbach, at the time a member of Congress and a candidate for re-election, received a campaign contribution of $25 from Roy B. Nichols, Postmaster at Houston, Tex. This last contribution was received by Wurzbach in person in the office of Nichols in the Federal Building in Houston. This contribution was by check on the Union National Bank of Houston, the check being numbered 1493 and I now offer the original check to the committee as evidence."

Wurzbach admitted he had received all of the contributions, but declared they were unsolicited and came from men who had given the money voluntarily and were his lifetime friends.

"I do not understand," he said, "that it is a violation of the criminal law to accept voluntary contributions."

Tells of Patronage Pact. Creager testified that in October, 1924, C. K. McDowell, then of San Antonio, entered into an agreement with Wurzbach whereby the representative was "to support McDowell for the position of Collector of Customs" and that he was "to pay Wurzbach $1000 as a campaign contribution."

"Wurzbach, at the very time," Creager said, "signed a written indorsement of McDowell for the position stated and this written indorsement was mailed by McDowell to the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew Mellon. McDowell delivered and caused to be delivered to Wurzbach prior to the election, the sum of $250. Immediately after the election Wurzbach called upon McDowell and demanded the balance of the $1000 and on Nov. 3, 1924, McDowell delivered his check, on the Community State Bank of San Antonio, to Wurzbach, said check being payable to H. M. Wurzbach, in the sum of $710. This check was subsequently indorsed and cashed by Wurzbach. I now offer the committee the original check."

Creager read an affidavit made by D. H. Morris, former Administrator of Prohibition in Texas, and a letter from Frank Cole, another former prohibition director there, to refute testimony that he had "protected" Texas hotels from dry raiders.

Morris said, "Creager did not discuss or request protection from me," and Cole charged that Wurzbach was "drunk" during one of the Republican State conventions and that Cole "threatened to lock him up." Wurzbach denied the charge.

Brookhart Assails "Machine." The hearing was enlivened by frequent tilts between Chairman Brookhart and the Texas Committeeman.

"I would wipe out all automatic machines," Brookhart said, declaring he had "an experience with a machine in Iowa," which, he said, was "just like" Creager's.

"Ours is not an automatic machine," Creager replied. "Every member is elected under the Texas law. In no line of human endeavor is an organization more important than in political campaigns."

The Iowa then submitted figures to show that from 1921 to 1923 the Creager organization in Texas had received contributions totaling $205,190 and that the "pinks" of the donations had come following presidential elections.

ATLANTIC TELEPHONE CABLE TO BE LAID BY A. T. & T.

Part of $2,000,000,000 Construction Program Planned for Next Five Years.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Expenditures of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for new construction in the next five years, including the laying of trans-Atlantic telephone cable, are expected to approach $2,000,000,000.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the company, in his annual report to the stockholders today, said that $425,700,000—more than a million a day—had been spent on construction last year and that the outlay for new facilities during the next five years "will undoubtedly be well in excess of $1,900,000,000 spent in the last five years."

Gifford disclosed that research

engineers of the Bell Telephone laboratories had perfected a means of making a trans-Atlantic telephone cable which when in operation would substantially increase the facilities for overseas communication.

The volume of trans-Atlantic telephone business continues to increase and has at times overloaded the radio telephone facilities," said the report. "A short wave channel is now in use supplementing the long wave channel."

BOY, 4, RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Kenneth Morgan, 4 years old, suffered internal injuries last night when struck by an automobile occupied by three men while crossing the street in front of the Morgan home, 2605 Slattery street. The machine failed to stop. The boy is in a serious condition at Mulvaney Hospital.

Land Grants

The expenditure of public funds to build canals and improve rivers for navigation is often compared to the land grants that were made by the government to aid the construction of some pioneer railroads. The fact is that such expenditures and land grants are different in several important particulars.

Take the grant of land in Illinois to the original Illinois Central Railroad. It was the first of the federal land grants for railroads.

There is no question of the substantial help which the Illinois Central Railroad derived from this grant. Without such help the road could not have been built at the time it was built, in advance of the settlement of interior Illinois. Yet the government gave away nothing of value, for there was no one to buy the land until the railroad provided a reliable means of transportation.

On the other hand, the government received something of great value. The building of the Illinois Central Railroad enabled the government to sell at advanced prices the land it had retained and thereby recoup immediately the full price of the entire land grant. Moreover, taxable property was permanently created, the Illinois Central obligated itself forever to carry mail, troops and other government traffic at reduced rates, and a special tax was levied upon behalf of the state of Illinois which is still being regularly collected after more than seventy years.

Government expenditures on inland waterways are different. They are valuable at the time they are made, the beneficiaries give nothing for them, and where the government itself goes into the transportation business there is no increase in taxable property values.

Government assistance to inland waterways truly comparable to the Illinois Central land grant would be the donation of stretches of unimproved streams and adjacent worthless land, the recipients to make all improvements themselves, pay special taxes and handle government traffic at reduced rates.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

L. A. DOWNS,
President, Illinois Central System.

SIMON DENOUNCES
G. O. P. MACHINE
RULE IN ST. LOUIS

Says Organization Has Made Loyalty to Itself
the Test of Fitness for Office.

In a radio speech over station
KWIK last night, Dr. John H. Simon, one of the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, pledged himself to a single term, if elected; proposed a municipal board of arbitration to settle labor difficulties in St.
Louis, and criticized the Republican domination of the local government.

Dr. Simon said, in part:
"For many years the government of the city has been in the absolute control of a powerful, political, Republican machine, which has made loyalty to it, and not an honest desire to serve the people faithfully,
the test of fitness for public office,
and which, through the vast patronage at its disposal has not only maintained its control over our municipal government but has wrested every vestige of it from the hands of the people.

"The result is seen in unsolved problems and situations like the use of the Free Bridge by the railroads; the employment of influential agents in securing contracts for public work; favoritism in the letting of contracts; expenditure of public money extravagantly; streets out of repair and untravelable,
the majority of them still unlighted, notwithstanding the large sums raised by bond issues for that purpose; while, through the influence of the machine, acting in concert with a similar State machine, home rule in some of its vital essentials has been denied to the people of St. Louis and consigned to the limbo of dead issues. So strongly enrenched has the Republican machine become that for many years a nomination on the Republican ticket has always been regarded as equivalent to election to the office, and candidates have invariably sought the support of the leaders of the machine and their satellites rather than make a direct appeal to the people.

Chief Issue of Campaign.
"We believe that the big issue before the people is to wrest the control of our city government from the unscrupulous and dominating Republican machine, which holds it as a vice, and that the best and most effective method to accomplish this purpose is to insure the defeat of the nominees of the machine by nominating a candidate who will destroy the machine and who will institute civil service in the City Hall in fact and not in theory. The nomination of an independent ticket outside of the regular party would entail considerable trouble and involve a enormous expense; hence, there being no national issue involved in the coming election, I have filed on the Democratic ticket.

For Board of Arbitration.
"I pledge myself to the policy of putting an end to strikes, lockouts and other industrial controversies between employers and employees in St. Louis, with the resultant evils which flow from them to the public, by creating a board of arbitration, to be appointed by the Mayor, to which such disputes shall be referred, and all the proceedings of which shall be public and all the records of which shall be open to public inspection.

"Should I become the Democratic nominee I shall make use of the radio principally as the most effective means of reaching the general public. Ward meetings and other similar gatherings, with the usual parades, bombs and other devices intended to whoop-up for the candidate, are antiquated in these days. The coming campaign will be a serious matter and the people wish to be informed rather than entertained. Teas and house parties will be tabooed. Neither do I propose to go about kissing other people's babies and awarding marathon prizes at dance halls.
If I am elected Mayor I shall pursue the same policy.

"The Republican party has left the affairs of the city in such a deplorable mess that it will take four years of a busy man's time to disentangle them. St. Louis is confronted by a period which calls for serious endeavor and the next mayoralty term will not be a half-day parade. What is most needed now is a militant, progressive and intelligent leadership. No jazz Mayor will fill the bill. The man who undertakes to pull the city out of the slough into which, through the sheer incompetency of Republican rule she has blundered, must keep on his working clothes and not a full dress suit."

McDaniel Avoids Politics in Talk to Y. M. C. A.

Lawrence McDaniel, another candidate for the Democratic mayoral nomination, addressed a group of Y. M. C. A. clubs at the North Side Y. M. C. A. last night but refrained from mentioning his campaign or candidacy. He had been introduced as a candidate. He spoke of the advantages of the law school for training public leaders, saying:

"A vast majority of our public leaders are drawn from the legal profession. The nature of the profession brings its members into contacts that lead to leadership, and the practice of law entails a versatility of affairs of all kinds which is invaluable to the public man.

Lawyers know something of practically all lines of human endeavor; they are trained in appraising human nature; they understand the spirit and structure of our laws and the motivating forces in our economic life."

FOOD ANIMALS KILLED
BY ELECTRIC SHOCKS

Speaker Before Humane Society Describes Slaughtering Methods Used in Chicago.

The painless slaughter of food-animals by electrocution, an experiment being successfully conducted in the Chicago Stockyards, was described by Richard C. Craven, Albany, N. Y., principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Humane Society of Missouri at Hotel Statler yesterday. Craven is traveling organizer for the American Humane Association.

The Chicago method, he said, had been found practical where previous electrical slaughtering devices had not. Formerly, the electricity coagulated the blood, making bleeding impossible. The method used in Chicago is the invention of French and German scientists, and through the use of intermittent current stuns the animals so that bleeding and death are brought about without coagulation or pain.

Craven, scouted the popular conception of humane society members, declaring that practical notions rather than pointless senti-mentalism figured in their objectives. This was illustrated by the policy of painlessly disposing of vicious, old and homeless dogs in various better homes throughout the country. Old or injured horses and other pet or domestic animals likewise receive the attention of the societies, he said. Approximately 75 per cent of the dogs received by societies are killed, only about 25 per cent being found suitable for reclamation and placing in homes.

Citing the Massachusetts law against the cropping of dogs' ears, the speaker predicted similar legislation in other states shortly.
Robert F. Sellar, St. Louis, secretary of the Missouri Society, announced that for the second time in the 63 years' history of the national organization, this group will hold its annual convention here, Sept. 30-Oct. 2, next. The other national convention held here was in 1904. He told of efforts to get an amendment to the present Missouri law against cruelty to domestic animals. Indications are that the movement will succeed and that the designation "all dumb animals" instead of "dumb animals" will make the law more effective, he said.

Officers re-elected were Gerald
B. O'Reilly, president; Mrs. George W. Pickens, vice president; Sellar, secretary, and George Brand, treasurer. All are of St. Louis.

Plans were discussed for observance of national "Be Kind to Animals Week," next April 14-20.

Valentine Reunites Pair.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 1.—Mrs. Annyta Hein Rabinoff, former German opera star, sent her estranged husband a Valentine two weeks ago and now they are living together.
A few weeks ago she testified that Samuel Rabinoff, wealthy attorney, had kept her secluded throughout their married life "like a nun in a cloister." She wanted a decree of separate maintenance.
Judge Joseph Sabath explained that the reconciliation began when Mrs. Rabinoff sent her husband a Valentine. They are going to Hot Springs, Ark., on a second honeymoon.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE SURVEY OF SECURITIES TRADING FIELD

In connection with its consideration of a plan to establish a stock-raising department, the Board of Directors of the Merchants' Exchange has authorized its secretary, C. B. Rader, to conduct a preliminary survey of facilities for securities trading. It is likely that Rader will visit other cities to complete his survey, submitting his recommendations to the board. Discussion of a proposed consolidation with the St. Louis Stock Exchange has not been abandoned, but it is understood that considerable passive opposition exists among the members of the Stock Exchange.

If the Merchants' Exchange establishes a securities department, it will be following the lead of several similar organizations, particularly in Chicago and New York.

BOYD-RICHARDSON—OLIVE AND SIXTH

Does the Oil
you're using now have the 4 essentials of complete and proper lubrication?

1. Low Carbon Content
2. Non-fouling Carbon
3. Ideal body at all Operating Temperatures
4. Low Pour Point

Check your present oil for these four characteristics. Every oil, of course, has one of them. A few rate high on two or even three. But only Shell Motor Oil combines them all.

After all Isn't this the real test of motor oil?

THERE is no simple way to check the quality of motor oil. Not color... Not the way it feels between the fingers... Not even price... And not mileage between crankcase changes.

Oil must have four characteristics, engineers say, if lubrication is to be both complete and correct. There are four essentials which motor oil must have.

Thousands of automobile owners have found one oil—Shell Motor Oil—which meets these requirements in every way.

Regular users of Shell Motor Oil report a marked reduction in carbon removal jobs. They enjoy amazing freedom from power losses due to carbon accumulations. That's because Shell has an extremely low carbon content—20 to 33 per cent less than a number of other popular and nationally-known oils.

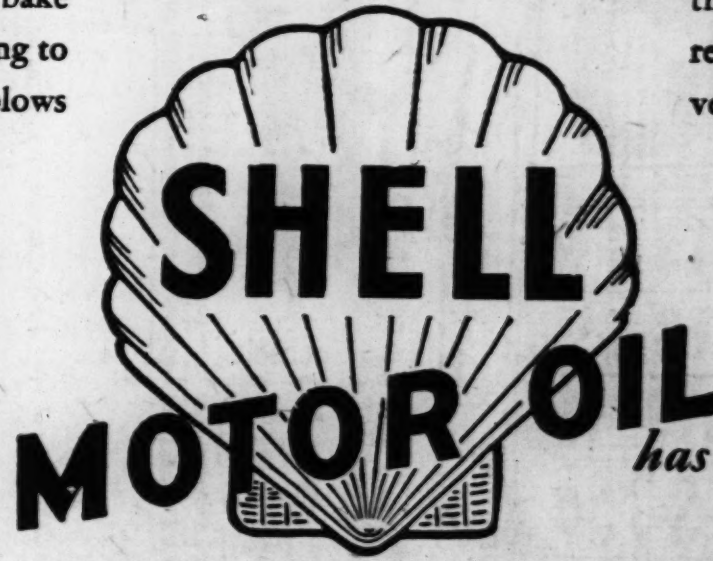

And the small amount of carbon which forms in a motor lubricated by Shell, is soft, fluffy and non-fouling. It does not bake on metal surfaces or cling to moving parts. Instead it blows out with the exhaust gases. Shell Motor Oil has body and stamina. It won't break down. It provides the same protection to an engine at sixty miles an hour as at twenty. And to body, Shell adds a low pour point which makes starting easy and lubrication swift and certain in cold weather.

Shell Motor Oil is today's outstanding development in the science of automobile lubrication. Shell crude comes from handpicked wells. Refined by the new and exclusive Shell-developed, low-temperature process. Never scorched, never weakened by the heat of ordinary refining practice. And tested 259 times to check and certify the rich unvarying quality of every quart.

That quality is adding countless extra better miles to thousands of cars like yours. That quality has, in a short time, made Shell one of the best selling oils in America.

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL—and let the Shell Lubrication Chart be your guide. You will find courteous attendants at the familiar yellow and red service stations. Convenient everywhere.

has the 4 essentials of complete and
proper lubrication

To the man who thinks all motor oils are alike—we say,
"Try Shell—for 30 days"

One complete crankcase change will be enough to show you that there is a difference in motor oils. Put Shell Motor Oil over the road in the hardest kind of service. Shell speaks with performance... thrives on comparisons.

400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline starts quickly, burns completely and delivers full power because it's a "dry" motor fuel. Ought to cost more, but it doesn't.

19 OF CITY COMMITTEE BACKING M'DANIEL

Former Judge Priest Has 16, Dr. Simon Two in Democratic Mayoralty Race,

The contest between supporters of Lawrence McDaniel and Henry S. Priest for the backing of a majority of the 56 members of the Democratic City Committee for the mayoralty nomination, is continuing, and will not be ended until a few days before the primary, next Friday. So far, a Post-Dispatch poll today shows, McDaniel has the support of 19 committee members and Priest of 16. The third candidate, Dr. John H. Simon, has two.

In addition, the McDaniel forces claim one more, another is claimed for Priest, and still another is for Priest personally, but awaits action of the ward organization. Fourteen members of the committee are withholding a statement of their position until their ward groups meet, one has deferred making an announcement and one is out of town.

Of the 28 committeemen, McDaniel is backed by 12, Priest by three and Dr. Simon by two. Of the 23 committeewomen, Priest has the support of 13 and McDaniel seven. The men's precinct organization of the Eleventh Ward, by a vote of 18 to 2, last night endorsed McDaniel, after which Committeeman John Leonard announced his support of McDaniel. The committeewoman of the ward and her organization are for Priest.

The Sixth Ward precinct organization, met Wednesday night and endorsed McDaniel and Committeeman John Maroney and Mrs. Lena Evans, committeewoman, are supporting him.

Dewey Godfrey, Seventeenth Ward committeeman, has announced for Dr. Simon. Mrs. George Sudhoff and M. F. Rudolf of the Ninth have come out definitely for Priest. It was announced on behalf of Phelim O'Toole of the Twenty-second that he would back McDaniel. There is a pointed contest between McDaniel and Priest for the First Ward endorsement, as yet withheld. The Twenty-first Ward, dorsing either candidate.

NEGRO NONSTOP DANCE COMES TO ABRUPT END

Three Remaining Teams Walk Off Floor in a Huff.

The Negro endurance dance, which started at Eskimo Inn in South Kinloch Park Jan. 30, came to an abrupt end at 3:30 yesterday afternoon when the three teams left of the 10 that started, walked off the floor in a huff.

"The crisis has come!" Jerry Renfro, owner of the inn, mournfully announced to scores of Negroes who visited his place, last night expecting to see the dancers shuffle through another evening.

"Well, sir, it was just like a stampede," Renfro explained. "I don't know what got into them, but they acted like they were crazy. Can you imagine them quitting with a future like that before them?"

The future, apparently, was too much in the future for the dancers. Their record stood at 661 hours, and the world's record, more than 2000, was a couple of months away. The dancers had an hour off each morning and rested 20 minutes of each hour, as in customary in endurance dances, but they figure the full hour in computing the record.

Then they had financial worries. The dance promoters, to whom Renfro leased his resort for 25 per cent of the receipts, had dropped it after two weeks and neglected, Renfro says, to pay him his share of the $600 they collected.

The dancers were to have received $1000 in prizes, $500 for the winning team, $200 for the second and $200 for the third, but when the promoters left that arrangement was called off, and instead Renfro offered them 15 per cent of the gate receipts which totaled between $50 and $60 each night. In addition the dancers picked up several dollars in change each night by snapping into lively Charleston contests. Spectators frequently tossed coins to the floor to speed up the performance.

Jealousies developed, however, when the other dancers thought Charlie Jones and his partner, Pearl Blunt, were receiving too much attention and consideration from the nurse in charge, Lester Deberry and Ruby McMullen talked things over with Theodore Thorpe and Helen England, and decided they were being discriminated against.

Matters came to a head yesterday, and the disgruntled couples went home to catch up on their sleep. There was nothing for Charlie Jones and his partner to do but follow, and they walked out, leaving a mechanical piano pounding away in an empty hall.

Libel Suit Over False Label.
A libel suit to confiscate 70 bags of "Red Clover Seed" bearing the alleged false statement that it was grown in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, was filed yesterday in the Federal Court at East St. Louis. The Government contends that the seed was not grown in the states named. The seed was shipped by a Crawfordsville, Ind., concern and is in possession of dealers at Tuscola and Arcola in Illinois.

A Poetic View of the Southern Approach.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE new southern approach to the Free Bridge winds its way through that drab, ugly, but very necessary part of the city of which the polite suburbanite is blissfully unaware. To the left huge gas containers gradually lower away to thousands of St. Louis housewives prepare the evening meal, and their steel frames stand specterlike against a smudge, smoke-stained sky. To the right a stocky little towboat, with its retinue of empty barges, struggles valiantly with the father of waters, breasting the current like a tired swimmer, yet, tireless as the river itself, it will weave and wallow on past willow fringed banks and sleepy river towns to its destination which may be Keokuk, St. Paul or Minneapolis.

Across the river, and partially obscured for the moment by black smoke from the passing steamer, looms mountain-like the gigantic Cahokia power plant, performing trivial tasks for tolerably well-to-do people in half a hundred towns and cities. An occasional adventurous flock of Mallard or Ring-billed Teal, flying surprisingly low, twist their way past bridges and river traffic on their way to northern nesting grounds. A half dozen bell-divers are having a picnic in the backwash from the barges, and this morning, before the riveters started we could hear the canting of wild geese in the gray mist overhead.

There is a suggestion of permanence about this southern approach with its 50-ton columns and girders weighing even more. The latticed supports of the old approach seem frail and collapsible, compared with these sturdy members of solid steel. Photographers are always present when "Ben Hur's" "traveler" reaches out with two 75-foot booms and swings a 70-ton girder into place. Just now a hundred and twelve-foot gap over the Ball ice machine house is being spanned by pony trusses. Two "whirlies" on the ground and the "traveler" on top are handling this ticklish task which will complete the erection of the steel. From Rutger street to Chouteau, the shouts of the missing gang and the incessant staccato of air hammers create a perfect bedlam of industry.

Two hundred feet ahead of us a rivet-catcher casually lights a cigarette on a red-hot rivet that will presently perform a nobler but less picturesque duty. He has a slight swagger, peculiar to these fellows who have walked high on rivet-studded trusses, contemptuous of the earth and the earthbound, and there are dreams in his eyes, not dreams of the bridge complete and trains passing over, but little dreams of steady work and a woman, of overtime and an automobile, the Meramec and home brew. These things explain the bridge.

Against the Whipping Post.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I HAVE been very interested in your editorial comments on the whipping post bill. Your cartoon "Back to Barbarism" is a true, appealing picture, and should arouse right thinking Christian men and women all over the State.

Missouri is an enlightened State, too far advanced in civilization to revert back to obsolete forms of punishment. I am one of the mass of women, a wife, mother, housekeeper and homemaker with no influence outside my home. But I am hoping that you, with your great influence through the Post-Dispatch, will continue to use it against the whipping post bill.

The Condition of Lambert Field.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
RECENTLY I visited Lambert flying field for the first time in over a year. I was astounded by the terrible condition of our only municipal airport. Why any St. Louisian would want to take out-of-town visitors to this field is beyond me. It is a disgrace that St. Louis, which should be America's air capital, can boast of nothing better in landing fields than that mud hole at Bridgeton. Of course it is not always a mud hole. When the ground is dry Lambert field resembles a portion of the great Sahara during a sand storm.

The sooner our politicians learn to carry on in a business way instead of the customary fashion that enmeshes them in miles of red tape, the sooner St. Louis will be recognized as a potential factor in aeronautics.

The public voted in favor of the bond issue necessary to improve the airport. If the city does not make these improvements mighty soon it is quite probable that transcontinental airlines will select other ports for stopovers in this section of the country, and our field will stand practically useless as a commercial landing field.

AIR MINDED.

A LARGE number of letters have been received denouncing D. E. McDowell of Joplin, Mo., for his letter, "Those Conscienceless Sunday Fishers," printed Feb. 25. This is the result of a misunderstanding. Mr. McDowell proposed that the whipping post bill be amended to make Sunday fishermen subject to its provisions, but he did so with humorous intent, his object being to ridicule a barbarous piece of legislation. Editor's note.

OUR GROWING CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

It costs money to run political campaigns. The United States Senate Campaign Fund Investigating Committee, after its inquiry into the collection and expenditure of the Republican and Democratic organizations, reports a total expenditure in the recent presidential campaign of $16,586,115. This includes the expenditures in the states as well as in the whole country by regular party organizations. The Republicans spent $9,433,604, the Democrats $7,152,511. This large aggregate of campaign funds is unprecedented. But the conditions in this country are unprecedented. The vote in the presidential election was unprecedented. There are approximately 120,000,000 people in the United States. There are about 45,000,000 voters, and to be effective campaign material must reach every voter at least once. The aim, of course, is to give each voter campaign arguments as many times as possible.

The means of campaigning have multiplied. Party campaigners were limited till the past two years to speeches, mail matter and newspapers. Now they have the radio, and all of the means are costly. As the population increases the mediums of campaigning increase. More speakers are needed. More radio hook-ups are needed. Newspapers increase in number, political advertisements are more costly.

Ample reasons can be found for legitimate increase in campaign expenditures. These expenditures cannot be charged wholly to the benefit of the political parties. Much of the benefit is reaped by the people. They are enabled to inform themselves with regard to the issues and the personalities of the candidates. They can vote more intelligently with the arguments, pro and con, and the facts bearing upon the election. Without widespread broadcasting of campaign information the voters would be in ignorance and their ballots would be ignorantly cast.

The only danger to be feared from large expenditures in campaigns is corruption. Fortunately, in the last presidential campaign there is no evidence of the purchase of voters. "Blocks of Five" are conspicuously and happily absent.

Of course, one of the best safeguards against corruption in political campaigns is publicity—publicity of the amount of money collected and expended, and of the sources of the money. To render this safeguard more effective, the Senate committee offers four recommendations for improvement in the laws and regulations governing elections. One calls for adequate legislation regulating conventions and primary elections for nominations of presidential candidates. Another suggests an amendment of the corrupt practices act, so that it will apply to all political groups operating in individual states. The third recommends the amendment of the corrupt practices act to require definite statements of the nature of services rendered and other purposes of expenditure. And, finally, provision for more information regarding the borrowing of money, putting loans on the same basis as contributions.

Of course, actual money expenditures do not cover the total cost of political campaigns. The total cost in time, labor and personal expenditure would amount to a staggering sum. Probably the best that can be done to guard against corruption is to require complete publicity of contributions and their sources and of the objects and purposes of all expenditures. If this is gained, we shall at least know all the conditions of the raising of campaign funds and their expenditure.

ARISTOTLE DOES COUNT.

"Aristotle doesn't count in this election; he is not registered."

That was the judgment pronounced by Lawrence McDaniel on a discourse by Dr. John H. Simon—discourse which pleasantly conducted the Town Club along the "paths of asphodel."

That speech of Dr. Simon's was the one sparkle in a lusterless primary. The arts, the sciences, philosophy—practically all the "ologies" were deftly pointed out by a guide who knew his stuff. The doctor radiated erudition.

Instead of bowing graciously to the verity that everything worth saying had been said, and the party was over, Mr. McDaniel attempted a bit of facetiae by disqualifying Aristotle as a delinquent citizen who had failed to register. No more impious untruth was ever uttered.

Aristotle does count in this election. Aristotle is registered in every intelligent breath that mortals draw. Dr. Simon, in his practice of medicine, is inculcably indebted to Aristotle, but not a whit more so than is Mr. McDaniel in his practice of law. So with the other candidates. Judge Priest, in his learned abhorrence of tyranny; Mr. Kiel, in the structural calculations of a builder; Mr. Miller, in the application of rhetoric to his administrative achievements or omissions—they all owe their respective measures of skill, in some degree, to Plato's star pupil. So, too, with the accomplished personnel of the Town Club. Whatever their individual mettle, their proficiency derives from that fountain of mentality that ceaselessly pours its golden stream across the ages. So, with us, the demos, who may never hope to pass the portals of the Town Club—we are residuary legatees all of the Aristotelian heritage.

We regret to say that our Tau Kappa (pure Attic you know, for Town Clubbers) have disappointed us. They should have lauded the brow of Dr. Simon and tossed the sacrilegious Larry McDaniel into the Aegean.

THE UPPER MISSISSIPPI.

Notwithstanding the rosy promises of development upon the inland waterways, all is not well on the Upper Mississippi. The United States engineers have planned a six-foot channel between the mouth of the Illinois River and the Twin Cities, and the Illinois coal operators are up in arms against it. They have expected that the Upper Mississippi would carry their number, says that to make the channel only six feet will deprive the bituminous coal fields across the river of an immense market in the North and Northwest. Mr. Kavanaugh is chairman of the Commerce River Committee in the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and the committee threatens that if the engineers remain immovable it will carry the fight to the floor of Congress.

Maj. Hall, who is in charge of the Upper Mississippi, thinks the nine-foot channel would not be justified, but Mr. Kavanaugh offers a rather sound argument in favor of it. The rivers are being deepened to better American markets, and Mr. Kavanaugh says a nine-foot channel on the Upper Mississippi would open the Northern and Northwestern country to from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of Illinois coal annually, adding from $11,000,000 to $22,000,000 a year to the business of the Illinois operators.

If those figures are even approximately correct, the point would seem to be very well made. There is nothing sentimental about river development. It is a business matter, and one which, as Mr. Hoover sees it, means everything to the whole Mississippi Valley. If a nine-foot channel on the Upper Mississippi would mean so much to the coal fields of Illinois, it is likely that it would also mean a great deal to other industries. Certainly it is not a matter in which the United States engineers can afford to be dogmatic.

THE MOUNT WEATHER APPROPRIATION.

After several rounds of parliamentary sparring the Senate approved the $48,000 appropriation recommended by Mr. Coolidge for the establishment of a presidential retreat at Mount Weather, Va. A point of order was raised against the item by Senator King of Utah on the ground that it was in direct legislation. Senator Fess, presiding, upheld Senator King but Senator Glass successfully appealed from the chair's decision. As it happened, the Senate Appropriations Committee, in restoring the item after it was rejected by the House on the same point of order, had eliminated all its legislative features.

We do not believe there is a corporal's guard either in Senate or House genuinely opposed to the idea of giving the President a country place where he may seek refuge from the oppressive climate of Washington. But there are some Congressmen unwilling for selfish and sectional reasons to accept Mr. Coolidge's simple and inexpensive proposal to restore Mount Weather. They prefer the appointment of a commission to select a site. "If that is done," says the Galveston News, "it will lead to a lot of political log-rolling and probably provoke endless debate. Every locality within 500 miles of Washington remotely suitable for the purpose will enter the lists as a candidate for the country White House."

Mr. Coolidge foresaw such a situation and undertook to avert it by singling out Mount Weather, a beautiful estate already owned by the Government, as his choice. Now that the Senate has unraveled the technical point against the appropriation, we trust the House will accept the President's eminently sensible suggestion, so that it may receive his signature before he retires from office.

THIS FEBRUARY.

Ordinarily we watch February fade into March without a twinge. It has none of May's fragrance or October's brilliance. It has one less payday than March. Although it boasts two national holidays, they have no truly festive character and with the exception of such luxurious creatures as bank clerks and political employees, everyone else punches the time clock as usual. St. Valentine's Day is dreadfully misplaced, and should occur in a month more suitable for romance. In other words February is usually a total loss.

This February was different. It was the coldest one since 1914. Skating and other winter sports thrived. The air was bracing. The sun shone. A real old-fashioned winter descended upon us, blanketed us with snow, fashioned ice crystals in the trees—and this is the important thing, it froze the Mississippi! We had been tired of hearing the old-timers scoff at the modern winter as an effeminate imitation of what happened in the good old days. They never wearied of telling how cold it used to be, and the climax of their boasting came in the phrase, "Why, the Mississippi was covered with ice a foot thick."

Well, this February the Mississippi above St. Louis did freeze. It froze so hard that automobiles and wagons crossed with perfect safety. It is true that, unlike the old days, no saloons were established in the middle of the river to escape licensing fees. And we have no parallel incident for the case of the mid-river bartender who fell through the ice when his overheated stove melted it. But just give us time!

MR. HOOVER AND THE LAME DUCKS.

Announcement of the Hoover Cabinet and some of the other important presidential appointments will be awaited by the country with particular interest because indicating whether the new President's point of view is to be that of public service or party obligation.

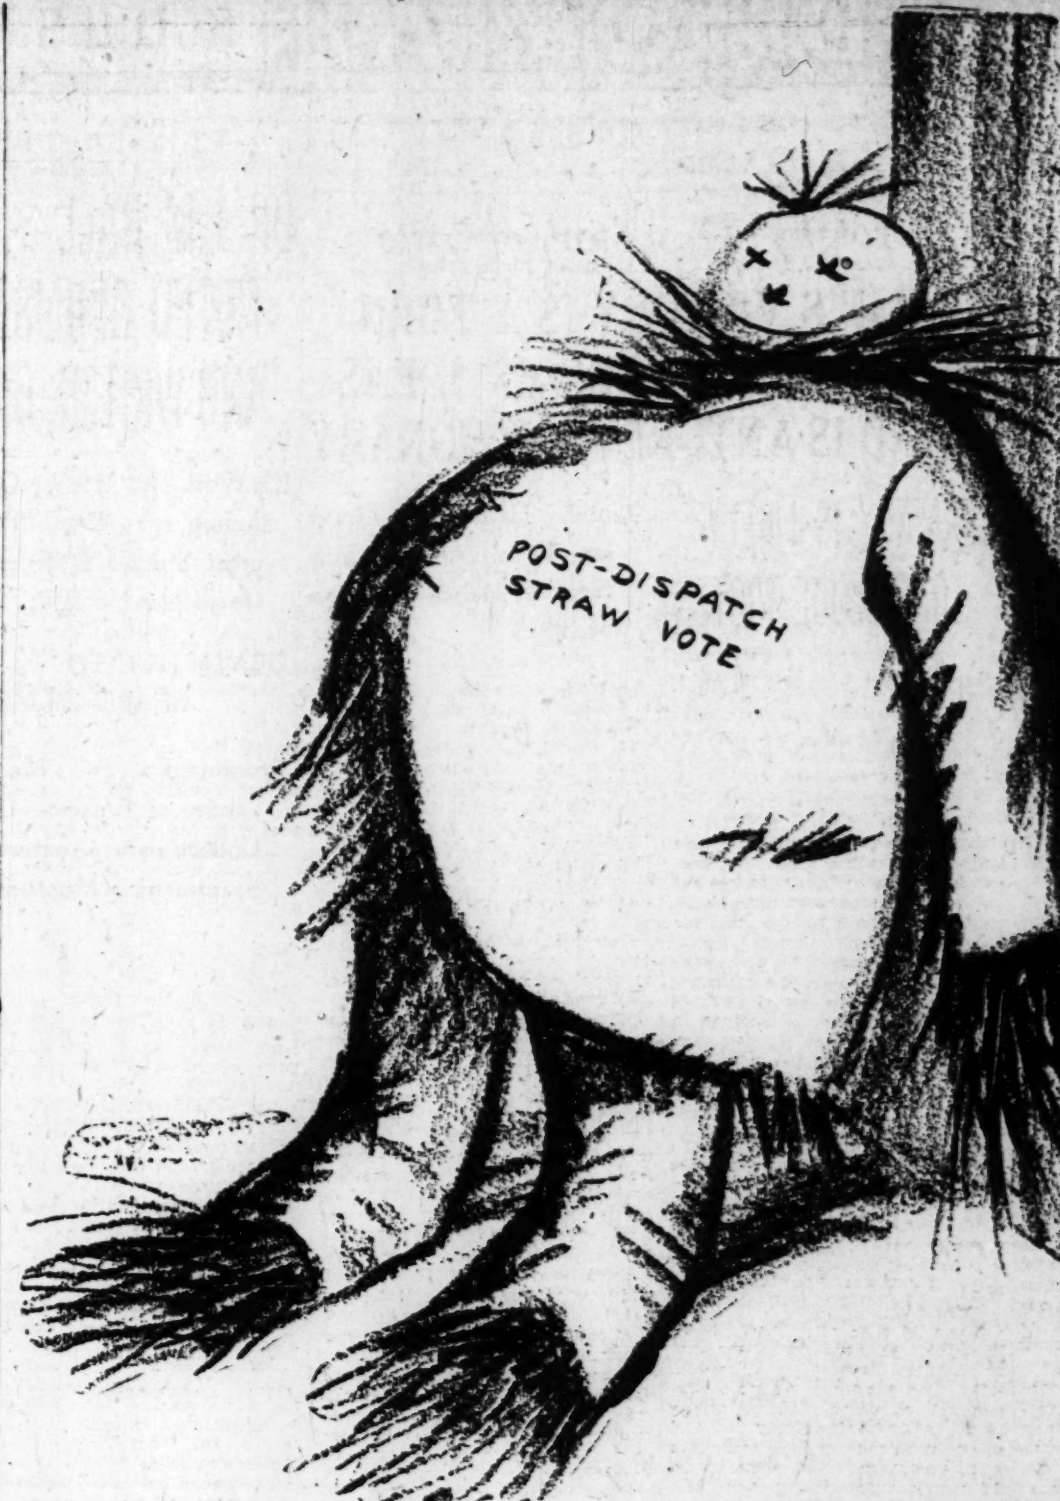

Mr. Coolidge persisted to the last in the latter point of view. He repeatedly appointed to important posts in the Government men who were conspicuously unfitted from the viewpoint of public service. Some of these appointments were rejected by the Senate. It refused to confirm Charles B. Warren, one of the organizers of the Sugar Trust, in the office of Attorney-General. It resorted to an executive session to confirm the appointment of Roy O. West, an Insull man, as Secretary of the Interior, a capacity in which he will sit on the Federal Water Power Commission. Both were bad appointments. They were purely political.

There are at least two such appointments before the Senate now. Despite favorable reports upon them by the Judiciary Committee, there is a strong likelihood that the Senate is going to reject them. Former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot has been appointed to the Court of Customs Appeal, and Henry H. Glasie, whose reappointment to the Tariff Commission the Senate has refused to confirm, has been put up again as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

We hope to see the Senate refuse to confirm such appointments. Lenroot participated as an attorney for the Power Trust in the fight on the Walsh resolution. He used his privilege upon the floor of the Senate as a powerful advantage in that fight, and is said to have taken a $20,000 fee as a super lobbyist. He had already been thrown out by the people of Wisconsin, and for the White House to take him up and elevate him to a judicial post deprives the people, just as Senator Norris has pointed out, of any power to repudiate a faithless public servant. Glasie was refused confirmation by the Senate because he had voted to increase the sugar tariff notwithstanding his wife was interested in Louisiana sugar stocks. It was for this reason that the Senate refused to continue him on the commission. Now he is to be a Judge.

Mr. Hoover can immensely hearten the country by refusing to appoint men for merely party reasons to important places in the public service. It is a vice that assumed incredible boldness under Mr. Harding. It persisted under Mr. Coolidge to the point where the Senate, despite a Republican majority, was forced to rebel. The Government service should be something better than a refuge for lame ducks.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, FRIDAY, MARCH 1, 1929.

ANOTHER FAT MAN IN THE RACE.

Spain and America

As a retired empire-builder, Spain watches with interest the encroachments of the United States upon Latin-America; she considers the Monroe Doctrine the charter of American imperialism; she thinks Cuba fell from the frying pan into the fire, but rejoices in the rapid improvement of Mexican-American relations.

From an article by SALVADOR DE MADARIAGA in FORUM.

THE arguments and attitudes generally employed in the United States to cover with a mantle of respectability the stark imperialism of the United States—territorial first, financial afterward—cannot be expected to meet in Spain with the same amount of credibility which they obtain at home. Spain, whose turn of mind is realistic and apt to pierce through words till it strikes the bed rock of things, is deeply imbued with the feeling that the United States considers the whole continent as its prey. Annexation begins in the soul, whence it passes into the language. Spain attaches a profound significance to the fact that the United States calls itself "America." This act of verbal annexation of the whole continent, precisely because it is subconscious, innocent, and, to say, "unmeant," is to Spain's way of thinking, the revelation of the imperialist intention of the United States.

The next stage is an act of conquest in the mind. To Spain the Monroe Doctrine is the charter of American imperialism over the whole continent. We need not discuss what it means, even if such a discussion is possible. For our purpose all we need remark is that the United States has repeatedly asserted its decision to reserve for itself the exclusive right to define, interpret, and apply the Monroe Doctrine. Now the significance of the Monroe Doctrine lies in this very fact, and not in what the Doctrine says or means. The essential fact about the Monroe Doctrine is that while it vitally affects all the South American states, these states have no access to it, no co-operation or acquiescence in its definition, interpretation, or application. By asserting the unilateral character of the Monroe Doctrine, the United States has at one stroke—a stroke of sheer force—headed all the South American countries and reduced them to the status of protectores.

Cuba, leaving Spain for America, fell from the frying-pan into the fire. The Platt amendment was a terrible humiliation to her. No one who has gone into the matter can hold that this humiliation has been compensated in any way by a statesmanlike use of the privileges granted to the American Government by the Platt Amendment, which was first moved and adopted in the Congress of the United States. It is generally held in Spain, as it is held by the best type of Cuban, that the power granted to the American Government by the Platt Amendment has served to maintain in office men subservient to American interests rather than the best men that Cuba would have wished to elect if free.

Perhaps the future is reserving Porto Rico as still another example. Spain has followed the destiny of this little island with deep feelings of sympathy and sorrow. In all fairness we must grant that it is one of the countries which have benefited by better administration, better health, and better justice since they passed from Spain to the United States. But that is not the whole story. When, in his Armetica day speech, President Coolidge expressed the view that American foreign possessions are held not for profit but for duty, did he remember this little island? What duty keeps the United States there? The Porto Ricans, like the Cubans, have seen their economy deeply transformed for the worse by the ruthless application of market laws since they entered the American community. They have been gradually evolving from small landownership to an agricultural proletariat, from variety of culture to specialized production, and a corresponding dependence on their large neighbor for every staple article of food and life.

Spain is deeply interested in Mexico, and enlightened public opinion—which is the opinion described in this article as "Spanish"—is not in sympathy with the reactionary Spanish colony which has been a thorn in the flesh of every Mexican Government since Porfirio Diaz fell. Spain did not fail to observe that for a number of years the good name of Mexico was slandered in a certain influential section of the American press by men whose expert qualifications for slandering good names can best be summarized by quoting their own—Senator Fall and Mr. Doheny. The rapid improvement of Mexican-American relations, brought about by the means and talent of Ambassador Morrow, has been duly noted, and the new Mexican policy of the United States has certainly increased the good name of the United States in Spain.

But Spain remembers how Mr. Roosevelt "took Panama" and has duly observed how President Coolidge, with the Pact to Outlaw War in one hand, is "taking Nicaragua" with the other. She knows that economic and financial penetration is generally accompanied on the American continent by a corresponding loss of political independence and territorial integrity of the peoples penetrated. The mechanism of loans, financial advisors, and even naval missions is slowly disintegrating Spanish America. Spain knows her defects too well not to realize that the defects of the Spanish-American people go a long way to explain many of the unpleasant features in the situation; but if they go a long way, they do not go all the way by a means, and in the opinion of Spain that the United States has not been equal to the opportunity for statesmanlike co-operation and even leadership which the situation afforded.

Spain does not think America is in fact worse than any other European or Asiatic power. She is fully aware of the deplorable failure of her own governments, precisely in the lands in which nowadays she thinks American governments are failing. She does not stand above the United States as a reproachful schoolmaster. She watches as a retired empire-builder, sorrowfully beholding her successor committing different but equally deplorable mistakes on nations issued of her flesh which she herself once misgoverned. If she is specially interested in the United States, it is first because of this family relationship between herself and the victims of American second-hand power. It is secondly, because the power of the United States for good or evil is overwhelming; and finally, because this power is wielded without sufficient regard for, or knowledge of, foreign conditions.

WASHINGTON, March 1.

SOCIALLY speaking, this thing of a Vice President-elect has been the subject of much conversation.

Balls, benefits and banquets—so far as the hearts of those in Washington are concerned—have been somewhat of a thing of the past. During his stay in the Senator such functions held little attraction for him. A quiet evening with his wife and brother-in-law in the remoteness of their Cleveland Park home was a much better to the liking of Senator Curtis than any ball, banquet or benefit he ever thought of.

But now it is different. Each day, since the election, has seen Curtis take more and more interest in the thing until now he is regarded as a man about town. If a Vice President-elect may be so referred to.

Of course it was to be expected that a Vice President-elect would be a man of count of his exalted position. Senator Curtis prepared to take him up, but something quite surprising when it was taken up readily by Senator Curtis. Washington hostesses are jubilant, and from all sections the Vice President-elect is being invited to their homes.

He is taking a fling at everything, and an evening at home for Curtis is a rare thing. The other evening he and his party created quite a stir among the audience of one of the cheaper Washington theaters when they made their way to the front box.

And he stayed until the final curtain. Curtis' entrance into the social life of the Vice President has brought about conversations and anxious moments for hostesses.

HE is a widower and makes his home with his sister, Mrs. Edward Gann. Mrs. Gann has been designated as his "official hostess." Mr. Curtis' husband, an attorney of distinction in Washington, but has no official rank or that of her husband.

In other words, just where shall Mrs. Gann be seated when she attends a dinner with the Vice President? The Vice President of the United States, in the charmed circle of head of the table?

Some contend that a distinction made between Mrs. Gann accompanied her brother and Mrs. Gann accompanied her husband. In one instance, at least, the distinction was made. To meet Vice President-elect and Mrs. Gann.

Precedent and precedence mean much in Washington. Therefore, the problem is acute.

One Man's Adjustment

ASCENSION. By Thomas L. Mason. (Century.)
A man's life, whether it be a struggle for a satisfactory adjustment to the world, or a struggle for a satisfactory adjustment to the world, is a struggle for a satisfactory adjustment to the world. Some years ago I observed Taylor published a volume called "Deliverance" (later under the more specific title, "Prophets and Phyllophora") which dealt with the efforts of the human mind to arrive at some sort of viable adjustment to this uncompromising chaos. It is a book at once curious and saddening, for in the nobility developed in the sublime efforts, it still, like that with rare individual exceptions: those who are able to live merely by their instinct, as at odd with the process of adjustment, that is something that a cow so better than any man.

Nevertheless, being human, man cannot choose but strive, even the cost of great suffering, for a higher adjustment than the brute, and any human effort to arrive at "to be right the corner" (whatever that means) must be of vital interest to human beings similarly situated. "Ascension" is the record of an effort.

Until the last few years, Mason was known only as a careful journalist and writer. Those who still think of him in this light will hardly be prepared for this evasive book on the theme of the "interior life," however, is the fifth of the series has published, the first, "The Way Lining," having appeared in 1922.

Mr. Mason first gives an account of the circumstances in which he found himself compelled to seek a new view of life, and then, from April, 1914, to 1917, is presented a picture of the remainder of the volume devoted to an intimate description of the author's spiritual progress to date.

"Ascension" is a very apt book with not a hint of sentimentality such as one finds in so many works that undertake to deal with the problem of living a better life. It is also a thoroughly sane work, backed by a wide range of inquiry in many fields. Though slightly few, perhaps, will be as given—so much being a man of temperament and personal experience—any sincere reader should find something illuminating in the volume.

PUBLIC MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENT

The second of series of debates between Washington St. Louis Universities for the championship will be held at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the January lecture room at the Washington University campus. The subject is, "Resolved, that modern civilization is more detrimental beneficial to society." Robt. Claggett and Murray Steinberg will represent the Washington University, while Henry Hughes and Bernard McCabe will argue negative for St. Louis. The first of the series was won by St. Louis University in December. The second will be held in April.

Harland Bartholomew, president of the American City Planning Institute and engineer for the city of St. Louis, will be the guest of honor at the annual meeting of the American City Planning Institute, which will be held at the Washington University campus, April 10 and 11.

Each day, since the election, has seen Curtis take more and more interest in the thing until now he is regarded as a man about town. If a Vice President-elect may be so referred to.

One Man's Adjustment

BY THOMAS L. MASON

ST man's life, whether or not he may be aware of the fact, is a struggle for a satisfactory adjustment to the world-process. Unfortunately remains a mystery. Some years ago Henry Taylor published a volume entitled "Deliverance" (later issued under the more philosophical title, "Prophets"), which dealt with the efforts of the human race to achieve some sort of viable adjustment to this uncompromising world. It is a book at once profound and saddening, for in spite of the nobility developed in all these sublime efforts, it still seems that, with rare individuals excepted, the mass who are able to adjust to the world's process, and that is something that a cow can do better than any man.

Nevertheless, being human, we cannot choose but strive, even at the cost of great suffering, for a higher adjustment than that of a brute, and any human being's sincere effort to be right with the cosmos (whatever that may mean) must be of vital interest to those who are similarly striving. "Adjustment" is the record of such an effort.

Until the last few years Tom Mason was known only as a successful journalist and writer, and those who still think of him in that light will hardly be prepared for this evocative book on the doctrine of the "interior life," which, however, is the fifth of the series he has published, the first, "That Still Within," having appeared in 1922.

Mr. Mason first gives an account of the circumstances under which he found himself compelled to seek a new view of life, and his book, from April, 1914, to July, 1919, is presented for that purpose. The remainder of the volume is devoted to an intimate discussion of the author's spiritual progress up to date.

"Adjustment" is a very sincere book with not a hint of sentimentality, such as one finds in so many works that undertake to deal with the problem of living a better life. It is also a thoroughly sane book, well backed by a wide range of inquiry in many fields. Though relatively few, perhaps, will be able to accept all of Mr. Mason's views as given—so much being a matter of temperament and personal experience—any sincere seeker should find something illuminating in the volume.

BALZAC IN SLIPPERS. By Leon Gozlan. (McBride.)

If a friend may be defined as "one who knows all about you and still likes you," then Leon Gozlan was a wonderful friend to Balzac. Certainly there was a great deal to know about the author of "The Human Comedy," and Gozlan had the best of opportunities to know everything. He was himself a novelist and playwright of some distinction, but it is a safe bet that he never wrote anything more worthy of preservation than "Balzac in Slippers," which was the result of years of intimacy with the great French master. Though seeming never to spare his friend, the book glows from end to end with affection, and one feels that the picture presented is true. It has been said that only a man truly hating a man will not know him well, and that one can not know a man well without loving him. Some of our sophisticated biographers of the day might well study that saying and note with profit how the principle involved therein has triumphed in Gozlan's study of a great eccentric.

The book is now, for the first time, translated into English.

One of our most respectable publishers has hit upon a most amusing device whereby to get the right sort of publicity from book reviewers. The following is from a form letter sent out by this publisher to book reviewers in general: "If you should say something we could use would you object to our using your picture in our advertising copy at the time we use your comment, and have you such a picture you could send us?"

Can you beat it? In advertising Clement Wood's latest masterpiece, the publishers are telling the world that Mr. Wood, like Plutarch of old, "is fond of writing his best work while taking a bath." Undoubtedly this is a certain indication of genius.

WHY WE DO IT. By Ed Wolff. (Macaulay.)

The wild rush of so many utterly unskipped nobodies to get into print these days has its hopeful side. The supply of possible subjects out of which pot-boilers may be made can hardly be infinite, and so the time may come when there will be nothing left to write about. Ed just had to write a book and he has done it. Here we are given answers to such questions as: Why are brides draped in veils? Why do we select black for mourning? Why do we throw old shoes at new-layers? We are assured that, "as a book of pure humor alone," this work stands out, and that it "takes its place in the front rank."

INCREASED GIFTS URGED FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Need of Greater Donations Stressed by Albert T. Perkins, President of Organization.

"Thousands of persons in St. Louis, to the prosperity of whose business we indirectly contribute, are amply able to, but do not, contribute to charitable enterprises," Albert T. Perkins, president of the Community Fund, declared at the annual meeting of Community Fund agencies in Hotel Jefferson yesterday noon. More than 650 persons were present.

"I must impress upon you the need for increased donations," he said. Referring to the deficit of $123,323 with which the Community Fund started the present year, he added: "This was increased in 1928 by emergencies, such as unemployment, our increasingly better standards of caring for the needy and the growth of our work. The deficit, however, is only about one-half that at the start of 1927."

Robert W. Kelso, newly appointed director of the fund, urged that solicitation of donations become a seasonal effort instead of one carried on constantly during the year. He asserted that a city's greatness does not depend on its size or deposits, but on the quality of its citizens.

"These agencies of the fund are helping to produce such citizens," he declared.

"Thousands of families in the city and county are suffering from actual want," he added. "The burden falls on volunteer contributors to charitable agencies. Let us work together, not as isolated, hostile individuals."

The treasurer's report showed total income for 1928 of $1,682,926, with expenses of $1,806,018, making a deficit of $123,092, in addition to the 1927 deficit of $93,355.

A colorful costume pageant was presented, depicting work of the 51 agencies. Mrs. George Gelhorn, "Destiny," Mrs. E. M. Grossman, as "Spirit of the Community Fund," and James H. Platt as the "Spirit of St. Louis" participated.

New trustees-at-large of the fund, elected last year, were: Adams, George O. Carpenter Jr., Robert Day, Edward L. Kuhn, Edgar Mallinckrodt Jr., A. J. Michener, Eugene Pettus, Ethel Allen Shepley and George W. Stroudman.

DINNER TO HONOR CARL SCHURZ, WHO ADVISED PRESIDENTS

tail of which was that Garfield should not let Chauncey Ives Hilley of St. Louis have any part in his administration. After leaving the Cabinet, he was for several years editor of the New York Evening Post, and contended in its columns for civil service reform, to remedy the abuses of the spoils system. Legislation establishing this reform was first passed by Congress in the middle of the Garfield-Arthur administration.

Schurz endeavored to prevent the nomination of Blaine for President in 1884, and became a supporter of Grover Cleveland. His speeches in the campaign were detailed recitals of the charges that Blaine, as Speaker of the House, had been gainfully connected with railroad enterprises depending on congressional favor.

Schurz stuck to Cleveland in the 1888 and 1892 campaigns, and continued to advise him, particularly as to the upholding of civil service reform. The issue of imperialism, against which Schurz had contended when President Grant proposed to annex Santo Domingo, appeared again in the proposals for attaching the Hawaiian Islands to this nation. Schurz uttered many warnings against Hawaiian annexation, and Cleveland used his official power to retard it, although the popular desire increasingly favored it.

When the Bland-Teller free silver forces captured the Democratic party, in the mid-nineties, Schurz's allegiance to the principle of sound money drove him back into the Republican party. His speech in Chicago was probably the most widely circulated of the McKinley campaign literature. The conclusion of this speech was especially picturesque.

"Mr. Bryan has a taste for scriptural illustration. He will remember how Christ was taken up on a high mountain, and was promised all the glories of the world, if he would fall down and worship the devil. He will also remember what Christ answered. So the tempter now takes the American people up the mountain and says, 'I will give you from you half of your debts if you will worship me.' But brave old Uncle Sam rises up in all his dignity, manly pride and honest wrath, and speaks in thunder tones, 'Get thee behind me, Satan. For it is written, thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, truth, honor and righteousness, and him alone shalt thou serve.' This will be the voice of the American people on the third of November."

The issue of imperialism soon came between Schurz and President McKinley, and Schurz opposed the administration's policy in many speeches and articles. In 1900 he first favored an independent republic nomination as a means of beating McKinley, and when this plan failed, he was driven to support Bryan, though toward the end of the campaign he had no hope that McKinley's re-election could be prevented.

THOUGHTS while strolling: T Meek metropolitan types who carry umbrellas. Hatless boys in knickerbockers who carry ice skates. The lure of a chicken on a spit in a rotisserie window. Why does a jaywalker blurt out "Oop!" when suddenly stopped?

Alfred E. Smith Jr., in a low-numbered car. That oak-paneled hat shop hung with Ambrosian tapestries and antique damasks. And prices to match. Marcelle Carroll, a girl who looks like a flower, but who looks like a flower who looks like a flower.

Gilbert Seldes, an Alliance (N. Y.) boy, who made good in the city. The gold hall where slack wire artists and acrobats "at liberty" go to practice. New York's twin horrors—useless hurry and deliriousness of mind. Wonder why these people, so strong for Europe continue to live in New York.

About time for the poets to begin warbling things about spring. George Germain and his sister, the famous professional blood donor whose fee is $200 per "done." Tiny sidewalk print shops open all night. Detectives who police about out-town newsstands. Victor Scharitner, the movie director who wrote "Marchita."

A priest hurries by with bowed head and mumbling lips. Shabby old carriages trying to be grand. And solemn-faced drivers. Isaac Marcossion's daring shirts. Auctioneers of green jewelry who glitter with real diamonds. George White's tight collars. Those fall willow ladies you just know carry ostrich fans at night.

The marvelous delicatessen windows—thinly cut pink hams, cottage cheese, cold salad flecked with red peppers, potato salad and hot dog, yum, yum! Channing Pollock swinging a cane. Billie Burke's daughter—almost a young lady. A Chinaman with a pearl derby. The new auto row on Park avenue.

Sign on Tudor City apartment house: "Radio expert on premises day and night." A driver carries a legless man on his back to a taxi. A group of neighborhood movies featuring Othello-agony-of-ostrich fans at night.

attitude on imperialism and his "exceptionally bellicose temperament." Schurz refused to support him for Governor of New York in 1898, although they had been fellow crusaders for civil service reform. In 1904, the last campaign of Schurz's life, he backed Judge

NEW YORK, March 1.

SNIFFIN COURT is another glorified residential cul-de-sac to bloom on the East Side. Smelly old stables are remodeled into studios to house actors, writers, sculptors and painters. Five years ago many of these structures would not have rented for $20 a month, but sliced up they rent for $200 a month per studio.

Areas in tenement districts to find a bellwether and the sheep follow. There are innumerable people with a celebrity celebration who will gladly endure housecleaning discomfort merely to be a next-door neighbor to someone of importance. New York is that way.

THERE is a lady who provides a list of 600 names to social climbers for a fee of $50. The list is composed of tarnished respectabilities who have become chronic party goers. They go wherever asked without question. They have suitable clothes and are willing to swallow whatever is left of pride merely to go places and do things.

THE fellow able to live without work along Broadway is considered "a smart guy." Yet bromide collectors may have this one with love and kisses—the smartest of smart guys is one who loves his job, behaves himself, saves his money and shuns Broadway. In nearly 20 years of association with Broadway I do not know a man—and I've had my try at it—who played the Broadway game and beat it.

IN this connection a night club proprietor writes: "It is too bad you cannot appreciate the relaxing side of the fun people have in a night club. 'Tasty' that flushes other cheeks leaves you cold. You refuse to be touched by the contagion of its humor."

I only mistake noise for humor when I'm tight. And what are you paying for $2 bottles of ginger ale these days—six or seven cents?

THE night club impresario, of course, thinks anyone who cannot find joy in his 22nd parlor is a cranky old fogey. And it may comfort him to know I have reached that stage of old fogeyism where I look around for a policeman when little boys dash up from behind on roller skates.

OKLAHOMA U. STUDENTS IN CITY ON WAY TO INAUGURATION

Thirty students of the College of Journalism of the University of Oklahoma on their way to Washington to attend inauguration ceremonies of President-elect Hoover Monday, were entertained today by the Chamber of Commerce.

The delegation, headed by Dean Gilbert I. Garretson, was met at Union Station by a reception committee headed by R. Fullerton Place, chairman of the Publicity and Information Committee, and composed of representatives of the Chamber and the St. Louis Newspaper Publishers' Association. A tour of the city included visits to the Lindbergh trophies, the zoo, Missouri Botanical Gardens and Washington and St. Louis universities.

Each student is an official representative of an Oklahoma daily paper, and will write his impressions of the trip on his return.

achievements of our age." Roosevelt could not resist the temptation to reply that if he had been "one of the conventional type of peace advocates," he could not have rendered this service. Schurz wrote him again, not so much to keep up the argument as to suggest that the President take action to bring about an international agreement for limitation of armaments.

Miss Louise Rumsey will depart this week with her father, Horace S. Rumsey, for the Inn-by-the-Sea, a Christian, Miss, to spend several weeks. They will make the trip by motor.

TALKS ON SCHOOL ART STUDY

Mrs. Mary Evans Hallock, assistant supervisor of art in the St. Louis public schools, spoke to the St. Louis Country School Art Club yesterday at the home of Miss Eleanor Elliott, 702 Radcliffe avenue, University City.

STALIN'S VICTORY ANTI-REVOLUTIONARY, DECLARES TROTSKY

constant danger of expulsion took out a kind of insurance against such a measure by selling any opportunity that offered to differ with Trotsky. The anti tactics followed from the end of 1923 onward in all parties composing Kominintern.

Mediocrity in the Saddle.

Leaders were deposed and others were put in their place all according to their attitude toward Trotsky. Selections were governed not by aptitudes but by adaptability. The party's general policy was to replace men of independence and capability with mediocrities, docile to the chiefs.

Stalin became the incarnation and supreme expression of that mediocrity. By the end of 1923, when three-fourths of the party officials had been selected that way, the struggle was pushed into the ranks of the party. All exits were guarded and nothing but a signal for the attack was waiting. That signal soon was given. The first two discussions opened against me, namely, in the autumn of 1923 and the autumn of 1924, coincided in both cases with my illness which prevented me from attending any meetings. At the same time, under pressure from the Central Committee, the rank and file everywhere were prepared for the attack. Out from the archives were dragged my old differences of opinion with Lenin which not only antedated the Revolution but the war, and had long since been liquidated by our common struggle. They were now deformed and amplified and offered to the ignorant in messages to the party as matter of most burning, immediate interest.

The masses were stunned, bewildered and intimidated. The method of selecting personnel descended one degree further. Now it became possible to be appointed as factory manager, secretary of a shop committee, book-keeper or typist without giving some sign of sympathy to Trotsky. The party suffered economic reprisals.

I avoided taking part in the fight as long as possible, particularly as it was originally only an unprincipled plot against my person. It was clear to me that once started, such a fight must inevitably become extremely bitter and would under the conditions of the proletarian dictatorship have dangerous consequences.

I cannot discuss here the question whether I was right in trying to preserve unity at the price of great personal sacrifices or whether I should have taken the offensive all along the line, even though there was no sufficient principle at stake. The fact is, I chose the first way and despite all that has happened since, I don't regret it.

Some victories lead to an impasse, some defeats open up new avenues. It was only after profound differences of opinion appeared, leaving more intrigue far behind, that I endeavored to keep the dispute within the boundaries of discussion of principles so that the value of contradictory opinions and prophecies might be tested by experience. On the other hand, Zinovieff, Kameneff and Stalin, the first hiding prudently behind the two others in the beginning, pushed the fight with all their strength. They did not want to give the party time to reflect and discover by experience which was right. When Zinovieff and Kameneff parted from Stalin, the latter used against them the same ferocious energy that the three together had deployed against Trotsky during the previous three years.

Significance of Stalinism.

The foregoing is not a historical explanation of Stalin's victory, but simply a rapid account of the manner wherein he won. I make no complaint of the intrigues against me, for any policy that blames its own defeats on its adversary's intrigues is a blind policy. Intrigue is in a way the technique of the business—its role is necessarily secondary.

Great historical problems are resolved by great social forces. Stalin's triumph with all his vacillation and instability demonstrates broad changes that have occurred in the relations between the classes in revolutionary society. It is a reflection of the international situation of the last few years, but the ensemble of these questions is a separate theme requiring longer treatment.

For the moment let us say simply this: Despite all the mistakes the world press had made and all its confusions in interpreting various stages of the soviet's internal struggle, despite its hostility to bolshevism, it has been mainly right in seeing the essential social kernel: Stalin's victory is a victory of the more moderate, conservative, bureaucratic and nationalistic tendencies and of the partisans of private property over the principles of world revolution and the traditions of Marxism. Consequently I have no reason to protest when the bourgeois press so eloquently praises Stalin's realism.

It is quite another question how long his victory will last and what direction future events will take.

DOCTOR ROBBED OF $18 AND KEYS IN OFFICE

Carl Ottersbach Is Victim of Holdup — Theater Doorman Reports $200 Theft.

Two armed robbers held up Dr. Carl Ottersbach in his office at 1509 Bremen avenue last night and, after taking $18 and the keys to his automobile, removed a special lock from the door of a garage in the rear of the office and escaped. The robbers made no attempt to start Dr. Ottersbach's car, which was in the garage.

John Summers, Negro doorman at the New Grand Central Theater, reported to police that while he was on his way to the Grand National Bank at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, two men stopped him at Grand and Washington boulevards and one of them pressed a revolver to his side. The men forced him to walk east to Garrison avenue, where they robbed him of $200 of the theater's money and escaped, he said. Summers furnished police with a description of the men.

An armed Negro held up Hyman Fishman, clerk in a shoe store at 3321 Laclede avenue, last night and escaped with $46, Fishman reported.

A robber locked George Goldstein, proprietor of the Triangle Tire Shop, 6122 Delmar boulevard, in the basement of the store last night after forcing Goldstein to give him $105 from a safe.

Herman Reuter, proprietor of a drug store at 5801 Gravois avenue, reported to police yesterday that he was held up in his store Wednesday night by two men and robbed of $120 in cash and $6 worth of stamps.

Intruder Takes Nothing.
George Miller, 11 years old, 2117 Esther avenue, reported that a man forced his way into the Miller home at 7 p. m. yesterday and demanded money. The boy, who was alone in the house, said he ran out a rear door and the man departed without taking anything.

Store Workers End Strike.
Fifty stove mounters of the Karr Range Co. and the Roesch Enamel Range Co., Belleville, who have been on a strike, have returned to work following a settlement signed yesterday. The strike started Jan. 1. The mounters employed by two other stove concerns are still out.

tion of whether it would be better for Germany to take the whole risk and get rid of all creditor control of its economic machinery or accept the experts' plan as the alternative.

In either case, the issue of reparations bonds through which commercialization of the terminal payments on Germany's debt is contemplated will be based on liens either on Germany's railroads, tax receipts or general credit. The character of the reparations bonds was discussed in the bankers' committee, headed by Lord Revelstoke of the British delegation. The experts have been extremely cautious about bringing forward specific suggestions regarding the bond issue. For this reason it is expected that the report which Lord Revelstoke is expected to make Monday will probably be an oral one.

The committee headed by Thomas Nelson Perkins of Boston, Thomas W. Lamont's alternate, will present a detailed plan for payments in kind, for Germany to accept or reject. The committee, headed by Sir Josiah Stamp, of the British delegation, which has been considering the method by which payments are to be made rather than with the amounts of such payments, is also expected to make specific recommendations.

The reparations bonds would not be of an international character, it was declared, but direct issues from the German treasury. Reports that the bond issue will total more than $1,000,000,000 were disregarded by members of the Revelstoke sub-committee. In the event of Germany's accepting the experts' plan for payments under flexible conditions, the ratio between conditional and unconditional payments will still have to be fixed, it is understood.

bill put through and the city bill left on the House calendar without further action. The action of the House yesterday complicates this situation, however, as the utilities bill is likely to encounter a much more vigorous fight.

The other three measures in the rapid transit program have been engrossed and are on the House calendar for passage. These measures are the rapid transit enabling act and two proposed constitutional amendments extending the maturity period of municipal public utility bonds from 20 to 30 years, and enlarging the condemnation powers of cities to acquire sites for public improvements.

Clarke Raises Validity Question.
When limitation of the bill to St. Louis was discussed in a hearing on the bill before the House Judiciary Committee, Stanley Clarke, vice president of the St. Louis Public Service Co., and a member of the survey commission, told the committee this might invalidate the bill.

Clarke said Ben Charles, St. Louis bond attorney, had given the survey commission an opinion holding that limitation of legislation of this type to St. Louis only would raise a serious question of its constitutionality, and that a supreme court ruling would be necessary to determine if such a restriction would be valid.

Police Judge, in Freeing Coal Wagon Driver, Holds It Is Discriminatory.
Charges against William McClellan, 3652 West Primus street, a coal wagon driver, who delivered a load of coke to a customer without having the weight certified by city weighers, were dismissed by Police Judge Rosecan yesterday. The city will appeal to test the validity of that section of the weights and measures ordinance which provides that the weight of fuel and grain must be verified on city scales before delivery. The Court sustained the argument of McClellan's attorney that the section is discriminatory in that it exempts bituminous coal in quantities of less than 25 bushels.

ADVERTISING Acid in Stomach Sours the Food

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid Is Cause of Indigestion.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation; then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, while it is effervescent, and, furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used by thousands of stomach sufferers with excellent results.

AMERICANS LOSE BELONGINGS IN HOTEL FIRE AT GENEVA

Wife of Prof. Patterson of Philadelphia One of 11 Persons Taken From Building.

GENEVA, March 1.—Several Americans had narrow escapes and many lost their personal effects yesterday in a fire which reduced the Hotel La Residence to ruins before daylight. The fire was caused by a stiff wind from off the Rhone Glacier, 60 miles away, which brought a severe cold that handicapped the firemen.

The wife of Prof. Ernest M. Patterson of Philadelphia, who was ill, was not taken from the hotel until it seemed certain that the structure was doomed.

Among the other sick persons safely removed was Mrs. Maxwell Dewardener, the former Dorothy Sinclair of Toronto, who has a home on Long Island. John G. Foster, former United States Consul General at Ottawa, and Mrs. Foster, whose home is now at Derby Line, were aided in saving their belongings by Consul Gilson Blake and Mrs. Blake, who came from Baltimore. Mrs. Herbert B. Frank of Washington, lost all her belongings as her rooms were on one of the topmost floors. Other Americans driven out were Dr. D. J. Perkins of Chicago and Washington, a celebrated woman botanist, and Miss Phyllis Nahl, who lost all her effects.

BYRD OFFERS AID TO AUSTRALIAN ANTARCTIC PARTY

Planned to Learn That Douglas Mawson Head Expedition to S Polar Regions.

By RICHARD E. BYRD, Commander U. S. Navy.

Copyright, 1929, by the Post-Dispatch and New York Times. (By Rights Reserved.)
This story in the Post-Dispatch, a series of articles from the special correspondence of the Post-Dispatch, will appear only in the daily edition in the morning.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Feb. 26 (By Wireless, Delayed). I have just heard that the Australian Government is going to send an Antarctic expedition to Douglas Mawson. This is news.

My friend, Sir Douglas, is a scientist as well as an explorer. There is no one who has a greater knowledge of Antarctica than we therefore predict for his brilliant success, and if it is possible for our expedition to separate with him, or to lend any assistance, we will be glad to do so.

All members of this expedition hold the admiration for him. I have and we wish him all success. Antarctica is a tremendous area and it will take many months to bring it entirely under the columns of the unknown.

Announcement was made in the Australian parliament by Mr. Bruce on Feb. 21 of plans for an expedition or series of expeditions to Antarctica to be headed by Douglas Mawson. The party next season on the ship "Terra Nova," used on Antarctic voyage, Capt. Robert Scott and Sir Shackleton, and will carry small planes.

Mawson in an interview given on Feb. 22, said that the expedition would be devoted to mineralogical and geographical study along the coast of Antarctica to the west of the Ross Sea on which the Byrd camp is based. He would not attempt to push inland on the Polar Plateau, Mawson said, and would return to Australia each year of wintering in Antarctica.

Mawson praised highly achievement of Commander Byrd, he declared, would toward solving the mystery of the mountainous region from Reeward to Graham Land, was explored from the air this season by Capt. Sir Hubert Hines. The Australian Antarctic expedition of 1911-12, which explored a large territory, was headed by Mawson, who has a member of previous expeditions.

TWO RAILROADS OPPOSE PROPOSED B. & O. Plan Against System.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—First attack on the railroad plan presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Baltimore & Ohio was made today by railroad The Southern Railway, which took direct issue with the project insofar as it called for the purchase of the Chesapeake & Potomac, called the Monon system, appealed to the Commission to let the Baltimore & Ohio phase of the Monon system go out that they owned part of the Monon company and 77 per cent of the project.

"The petitioners do not and are wholly unwilling to sell the Louisville and Nashville stock in it, or any part, to the Baltimore & Ohio to lease the property." It was further suggested that the intended acquisition of the Baltimore & Ohio would violate anti-trust laws and would violate the right of two objecting railroads to an opportunity to present an argument against the plan.

QUITS NAVY TO DIRECT ROBERTSON FLYING

Lieutenant-Commander Robertson has been in charge of the flying school at Great Lakes, Ill., since the service charges of the Robertson School at Lambert-St. Louis was announced today. LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Feb. 26 (By Wire). Delayed— I have just heard that the Australian Government is going to back an Antarctic expedition for Sir Douglas Mawson. This is good news.

My friend, Sir Douglas, is a great scientist as well as explorer and there is no one who has a greater knowledge of Antarctica than he. We therefore predict for him a brilliant success, and if it may be possible for our expedition to cooperate with him or to lend him any assistance, we will be delighted to do so.

Announcement was made in the Australian parliament by Premier Bruce on Feb. 21 of plans for an expedition or series of expeditions to Antarctica to be headed by Sir Douglas Mawson. The party will go next season on the ship, Discovery, used on Antarctic voyages by Capt. Robert Scott and Sir Ernest Shackleton, and will carry two small planes.

Mawson in an interview at London on Feb. 22, said that his expedition would be devoted largely to mineralogical and geographical study along the coast of Wilkes Land, to the west of the Ross Sea area on which the Byrd expedition is based. He would not attempt to push inland on the Polar continent, Mawson said, and would return to Australia each year instead of wintering in Antarctica.

Mawson praised highly the achievement of Commander Byrd and his party. The flights made by Byrd, he declared, would go far toward solving the mystery of the mountainous region from Ross Sea eastward to Graham Land, which was explored from the air the past season by Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins. The Australian Antarctic expedition of 1911-12, which explored a large territory, was commanded by Mawson, who had been a member of previous Shackleton parties.

TWO RAILROADS OPPOSE
PROPOSED B. & O. MERGER

Southern Railway and L. & N. File Petition Against Purchase of Monon System.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The first attack on the railroad merger plan presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission last week by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was made today by railroads.

The Southern Railway and the Louisville & Nashville, acting jointly, took direct issue with the merger project insofar as it involved the purchase of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, generally called the Monon system. They appealed to the Commission to reject the Baltimore & Ohio's pointing out that they owned 98 percent of the Monon common stock and 77 percent of the preferred.

"The petitioners do not desire and are wholly unwilling to sell the railroad," the Louisville & Nashville-Southern petition said, "their stock in it, or any part of their stock to the Baltimore & Ohio, or to lease the property."

It was further suggested that the intended acquisition of the Monon by the Baltimore & Ohio would violate anti-trust laws. The two objecting railroads asked for an opportunity to present evidence in argument against the merger.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells. And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physically weak. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

When Skinny Men Grow Manly

Five or 10 Pounds of Flesh on Their Bones Make a Lot of Difference.

Out in the country they used to say "Just as thin as a fence rail," and after Jim had somehow managed to grow more shapely and add more weight they used to say:

"Jim's a real good looking fellow since he took on flesh."

And that's the way it goes all over the world; the skinny, gaunt man can never be attractive or look manly until he puts more flesh on his scantily-covered bones.

Many thin men have gained in weight and at the same time in vigor and attractiveness—no thin man can do it unless he tries.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking a sixty-cent box of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One-Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your money will be returned.

Just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

SUMMATIONS OPEN AFTER FOUR-WEEK "LA BELLE" TRIAL

Duven's Attorney Says It Has Not Been Shown Prospective Buyer Saw Dealer's Statement.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 1. — After four weeks of testimony which had taken the jury of business men deep into the fine points of art, the legal battle over the origin of the picture "La Belle Ferronniere" moved toward its conclusion today.

By direction of Supreme Court Justice Black, summations were started. George W. Whiteside, chief counsel for Sir Joseph Duveen, art dealer and an expert, took up the burden of arguing his client's case. Duveen is being sued for $40,000 by Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn, who contends that he committed slander of title when he said in a newspaper that her "La Belle Ferronniere" was not painted by Leonardo da Vinci. Mrs. Hahn has contended that Duveen's statement terminated negotiations with the Kansas City Art Institute for the sale of the portrait for $250,000, and that she was unable to dispose of it thereafter.

Whiteside pointed out that testimony had shown that the museum had a financial deficit at the time of the proposed deal nine years ago and that the $250,000 therefore was not available.

Denies Article Spoiled Sale.

"There is not a line of testimony in this case to show that the head of the Kansas City Art Institute ever saw the article attributed to Sir Joseph," said Whiteside, "and we cannot see how the plaintiff can prove that it caused negotiations for the sale to be broken off."

Duveen was not reckless when he said that the Hahn picture was only a copy of the Louvre's "La Belle," generally accepted as the work of the old master, Whiteside contended.

"He has not changed his opinion," added the attorney, "in nine years of controversy."

360 Years of Oblivion.

The lawyer sketched the history of the disputed picture, asserting that there had been no testimony to show that its whereabouts had been known until the World War. He brought out that it had gone unlabelled from 1550, when it is alleged to have been painted, until 1915, when an expert called it a Leonardo "in order to sell it."

"This picture came from oblivion," said Whiteside, "and he questioned the possibility that Mrs. Hahn had received it as represented, from a French godmother of moderate circumstances, suggesting that 'a person so situated would hardly sell a picture worth $400,000 if a Leonardo.'"

S. Lawrence Miller, attorney for Mrs. Hahn, throughout his summation pictured Duveen as the chief figure in a coterie of experts controlling and dominating the world of art.

Says Duveen Is Powerful.

"Here is the man," he said, pointing to Duveen, "who is known as the greatest dealer in art by those who can't see the man behind the mask. He killed the sale of the Hahn painting when he put his foot down and crushed that little dealer in Kansas City. His influence goes all over the world."

Miller said it was impossible to get a prominent expert to testify against Sir Joseph, either because they were under his influence or in his pay.

Son of Museum Curator Compares X-Rays of Paintings.

A young research worker who has made X-rays of more than a thousand paintings was brought into Supreme Court yesterday to controvert the testimony of Dr. Wilhelm Dieffenbach, a physician whose first experience in X-raying pictures had been with "La Belle," belonging to Mrs. Andree Lardoux Hahn.

The witness was Allan Burroughs, a son of Bryson Burroughs, curator of paintings at the Metropolitan Museum. Burroughs has spent the last five years making X-rays of paintings for the Fogg Museum of Harvard University. He has X-rayed many paintings at the Louvre and at Berlin.

He was called into the case as a last minute thought, after Duveen's counsel had failed to have Dr. Dieffenbach's testimony ruled out, rushing to New York on a night train from Boston.

Radio Telephone Used.

Burroughs analyzed Dr. Dieffenbach's X-ray plates and declared there was no evidence that Mrs. Hahn's "La Belle" had ever been retouched or that it had ever been a wood panel, as she maintains.

It developed that he had made X-rays of "La Belle" in the Louvre but this was confidential and recent Duveen's lawyers got Paris on the telephone to get permission of Louvre officials for their introduction. Then a juror wanted to see the original film, as well as the prints which were on hand.

Experts were made to get an airplane to bring it from Cambridge. When this failed, it was sent by train. Except for what may develop from the introduction of this film, both sides rested their cases yesterday.

Strangely, the special X-rays, although photographic negatives, have the appearance of positives. This is because the light, flesh-colored portions, which might be expected to show black, are really of higher metallic density than the dark paints, and therefore appear white in the negative.

OLD GERMAN CASTLE BURNS
Limborg Chateau Built in 13th Century Damaged.
LIMBURG-ON-LAHN, Germany, March 1.—Three wings of the historic Limburg Castle, built in the thirteenth century, were destroyed by fire last night. The neighboring cathedral at the foot of the hill, with its ancient mural paintings and carvings, was threatened. A change of wind saved the main structure, but the church library with all its ancient literary treasures, burned.

Firemen were unable to check the flames because the water froze in the hydrants and hose.

COLBY PROPOSES U. S. BRITISH PACT FOR POLICING SEAS

Says Both Nations Should Take Out Insurance Against "Shipwreck of Kellogg Treaty."

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1929, by The Press and Publisher Publishing Co., The New York World and Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, March 1.—That the United States and Great Britain should come to an agreement to police the seas was the opinion expressed here yesterday by Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson, in a speech before the American Club of Paris.
Instead of allowing the present unpleasant feeling between the two nations to grow, said Colby, Washington and London should get together and work in the common interest.

Colby's speech was filled with many references to show that he had spent much time in England recently. It gave the impression that he was repeating the substance of conversations he had had with English friends.

Colby said an agreement between Great Britain and the United States on policing of the seas was simply a case of taking out mutual insurance. After referring to Lloyd's, the English company which will issue an insurance policy on anything, he said England and the United States should take out insurance against the possible shipwreck of the Kellogg pact.

With the two greatest navies combined to police the seas for peace, he declared, there would be in existence an international insurance policy of incalculable value.

Colby compared the position of the United States, "the greatest neutral nation in the world," with its need of keeping open the trade routes between the component parts of its empire. Both having signed a pact to outlaw war, he said, they could well afford to take another step in the same direction and see to it that there should be no war. This would serve the greatest interest of American diplomacy to protect its neutral trade—and would ensure to the British Empire the keeping open of its vital trade routes.

Colby's speech implied that the United States could undertake policing of the trade routes on all sides of the American continent and the British navy could police the other three continents.

Mutual Protection.
"Suppose England and America constitute themselves mutual protectors of the free avenues of the seas," he concluded. "We would not permit, by virtue of our consolidated maritime power, a recurrence of such a world catastrophe as that from which we have just issued. It would be something like Lloyd's underwriting. Who would be jealous of the world's underwriters of peace? Am I, as an American, hurt by the power of my co-underwriter, Great Britain? I am served and protected."

"There must be an understanding between the two great naval powers, sprung from the same margin, speaking the same language, fundamentally unified. We must achieve not only a formula of accord, but a formula of mutual protection and universal service."

Relief for Sore, Aching Feet

New York City.—"In my practice of Chiropractic, I have applied Resinol Ointment with beneficial results after the extraction of irritated and inflamed corns. Particularly when a corn is cut too close, a small application of Resinol is soothing and healing. After the extraction of soft corns, it has no equal. For cracked skin or for any kind of skin irritation on the feet, I find it reliable and safe."

U. S. TAX ORDERED
Judge Rules W. R. Barnhart's Transfer of $238,000 Stock Was Legitimate.

Contemplation of death was not shown in the transfer of $238,000 in stocks by William R. Barnhart to his three sons prior to his death in 1920, Federal Judge Davis ruled yesterday.

The Internal Revenue Department had collected $18,088 in estate taxes on the stocks, contending that Barnhart had made the transfer in contemplation of death.

Easy to apply
PAZOI FOR PILES

To evade the taxes. The department declared Barnhart was in ill health, subject to dizzy spells and under a doctor's care.

Trustees of the estate maintained that the transfer was legitimate and not intended as a tax evasion. Judge Davis so held, and ordered a refund of the taxes paid. The Government is likely to appeal.

Barnhart was chairman of the board of the Barnhart Mercantile Co. His estate, inventoried at $497,000, was willed to his widow and six children.

Numerous suits for tax refund now are pending in Federal Court here. Three more were filed yesterday, as follows: Erbauer-Atwood Co., seeking refund of $100,000; Rosen-Reichert Brokerage Co., $114,868; Charles P. William G. and John J. O'Fallon and Caroline O'Fallon Miller, heirs of John J. O'Fallon, $40,000.

East Side Motorman Held Up. John F. Wessel, motorman on a one-man street car on the Alta line in East St. Louis, was held up by two armed Negroes last night at the end of the line, Forty-first street and Bond avenue, and robbed of $35 and his cash tray.

The Negroes escaped in an automobile that had been parked at the street intersection, the license plates of which, it was disclosed, had been stolen.

BOOKS MORE EDUCATIONAL THAN TALK, SAYS DR. BOSTWICK
Declares Europeans Look to This Country as Leader in Conduct of Libraries.

Although the simplest way of getting a liberal education is through the conversational exchange of ideas, books are better educational mediums than men, Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, public librarian, told members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Public Library last night.

"The Pullman smoker is a particularly effective incubator of ideas," he said, "but books alone can spread before us the thoughts of great men of history."

"Libraries in America have made great advances in making books accessible to the people, and in developing their home use. As a result, European librarians are turning to this country for instruction in conduct of libraries."

Dr. Bostwick referred to the St. Louis library system as a "club of 300,000 persons." Now in his seventieth year, Dr. Bostwick is beginning his twentieth year as head of the local library system. He is the senior member in years of service on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest and has edited its science department for 25 years.

FRANCE RATIFIES KELLOGG TREATY

Parliament Approves Renunciation of War Pact by 570-10-12 Vote.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 1.—The French Parliament today ratified France's signature to the Kellogg renunciation of war pact by a vote of 570 to 10.

Foreign Minister Briand, who, with Secretary of State Kellogg, developed the renunciation of war pact, had asked the Parliament to ratify France's signature unreservedly.

He said that the peace pact was not perfect, but that it was realized amid great difficulties, "representing great progress toward peace, and presented the maximum guarantees against war that can be had at this moment."

He said that much work remained to be achieved in the organization of world peace, and pledged the efforts of the French Government to continue in that direction both at Geneva and Paris.

"True, the pact does not call for material penalties in the event of a nation breaking faith and waging war, but there are moral sanctions which must be taken into consideration," said the Foreign Minister.

"When I had the honor to address to the American people a message formulating the substance of the pact, it was received in the United States with a wave of enthusiasm, and I feel that a declaration of war by any country would be received in the United States by a similar strong reaction of popular feeling in the opposite direction. War has now been made a crime. A nation thinks twice before committing it."

U. S. Ratification of Pact Before Inaugural Now Unlikely. By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Hopes of the President and Secretary Kellogg to have the multilateral treaty renouncing war placed in full effect before they leave office on Monday were virtually abandoned today.

The Secretary of State in a letter today to Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that ratification of the treaty by three of the original 15 signatory nations was needed to make the document operative. The three nations which have not ratified are Belgium, France and Japan. The treaty is before the Belgian Senate, but advisers indicate that ratification before Monday is unlikely. Kellogg understands that Foreign Minister Briand of France, a co-author of the pact, is hopeful of ratification by his Government before Monday. The treaty is also before the Japanese Diet. Tomorrow morning 11 of the original 15 signatory countries will deposit their ratifications with the State Department.

NEW YORK.—The Executive Committee of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Wednesday agreed to renew conferences with the St. Louis and San Francisco for the organization of a Union Terminal Co. which would build a station at Tulsa, Ok. The latest action of the committee followed modifications of the original plans for the terminal. The plans now call for a $2,000,000 station and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas would use some of the St. Louis and San Francisco tracks into it.

Original plans called for a hotel and office building, in addition to the station facilities, but it was said that the hotel project had been dropped, thereby permitting a $300,000 reduction.

JURY UNABLE TO AGREE IN BANK LOOT TRIAL

Negro Had Been Accused of Receiving $40 Stolen From Old Orchard Depository.

A jury in Circuit Judge Nolte's Court at Clayton was discharged at noon today and a mistrial declared when the foreman announced that the jury could not reach a verdict in the case of Anthony Duley, a Negro, charged with receiving part of the loot from a bank robbery.

Walter Ryerly, 19, and Gilbert Crowe, 18 years old, serving 10-year sentences in the State Reformatory for the Old Orchard State Bank robbery, Feb. 29, last year, testified they bought whiskey from Duley before and after the robbery and gave him $40 "to keep his mouth shut." Duley admitted that the youths bought whiskey at his home, but denied receiving the $40.

The case went to the jury yesterday and, when the jury announced last night that they had not reached a verdict, they were instructed by the Court to return today for further deliberations.

WARNS POLL OFFICERS OF SECRECY OF BALLOT

Election Board Head Answers
Rumor City Employees' Votes Would Be Spied On.

Official announcement that the ballot in next Friday's primary will be secret, and that votes cast by city employees will have the same protection as the votes of others, is made by Oliver T. Remmers, chairman of the Election Board.

Chairman Remmers issued his announcement in reply to a written request made by former Mayor Kreismann, chairman of the Kiel Citizens' Committee. Addressing Kreismann, Remmers wrote:

"This is to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 27th wherein you state that you have heard rumors of a plan to force city employees to cast their ballots in favor of a certain candidate for Mayor, and further rumors that the ballots of city employees will be subject to inspection.

"The amended instructions covering laws and rules for the conduct of the primary election, promulgated by the Board of Election Commissioners, contain a direct reference to the subject you mention. Copies of these instructions have been received from the printer and we enclose several copies and direct your attention to the following instruction found on page 6:

Law Requires Secrecy of Ballot.

"The law imposes upon each election official the duty to preserve the secrecy of the ballot.
Warning is given that if any person shall either directly or indirectly, by whatever means or methods, divulge or intimate to any other person the vote cast by any other voter, or exhibit for identification or disclosure any ballot to any other person, he or she will be vigorously dealt with."

"Pamphlets containing these instructions will be sent to each judge and clerk of election in the 675 polling places in St. Louis, and copies will go forward today to the Police Department.

"Evidence of the violation by any person of this or any other election law will meet prompt, vigorous prosecution."

Stories of Intimidation.

Anton Klein, Republican committeeman in the Twenty-fourth Ward, in which the City Sanitarium and City Infirmary are situated, and who is supporting Kiel, reports that he has received many anxious inquiries from employees of the institutions. The inquirers, Klein says, wish to vote for Kiel,
but have been alarmed by reports that city employees will be required to mark their ballots in the open, instead of having the privacy of other voters.

Klein says he asked one of the employees who had made any such statement, and the reply was that a speaker at a Miller meeting, at Gravois avenue and Kingshighway
Wednesday night, had made it.

"Don't worry," Klein has told the inquirers. "The primary will be just as secret as a general election, you will vote in privacy, as others do, and no one will have any legal right to inspect your ballot at the polls or afterward."

Klein, telling of his conversations with some of the small-salaried employees, commented: "The city administration surely must be desperate, when it permits ward heelers to try to bulldoze these poor people. The regular Republican organization has no objection to the soliciting of funds from employees to help the Miller campaign.
But we shall protest vigorously against intimidating them, in their right to vote as they please."

Miller Denies Coercion.

Mayor Miller and his leading backers deny positively that any coercion or intimidation is being practiced upon the city employees.
Besides the Mayor's vigorous statement to that effect in a speech last night, his campaign manager, Isaac A. Hedges, said:

"The charges are so ridiculous and preposterous that they scarcely warrant a reply. Speaking for the General Miller-for-Mayor Committee I can say that nothing of the kind has been done and we will not countenance such action by any of our ward organizations. As a matter of fact we are not so hard pressed for support that we have to demand loyalty from anyone. Miller strength is growing daily. It's like a snowball that is getting bigger every day."

"In this connection, however, I would call attention to two gentlemen now at the City Hall who may not be any flight of fancy he constructed as Miller supporters, yet they are still at their jobs. One is Alvin F. Hackman, an associate city counselor. He is Mr. Kiel's nephew and although he is wearing one of his uncle's badges nothing has been said to him about his job. The other is George Dietz, Supply Commissioner. His antagonism to Mayor Miller has been open and vehement. Yet he is still at work."

AUTO TAG DRIVE ON EAST SIDE

Police Take Numbers of Motorists Without Wheel Tag Plates

A campaign against motorists who have failed to take out their 1929 wheel tag, similar to the city automobile license in St. Louis, was opened by East St. Louis police today. Members of the night police shift worked overtime this morning and, stationed at the principal downtown street intersections, took the license numbers of cars without wheel tag plates.

No date has yet been set for arrests in St. Louis and St. Louis County for failure to have 1929
State license plates.

Press Agent for Chicago Fair Argues Against It

He Wins Debate on Value of Exposition Planned for 1933—He Was Drafted for Argument.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 1.—There was a debate here last night for the edification of the 1000 members of the Illinois Club. The subject was: "Will the 1933 world's fair prove a benefit to Chicago?"

Affirmative was upheld by the Rev. Claude J. Perrin, S. J., head of the English department of Loyola University.

Arguing for the negative was Joseph I. Breen, publicity director for the world's fair.

Breen is paid for boosting the fair. It's up to him to arouse enthusiasm over it. Yet he was arguing the negative of the question and he won the debate.

Further Perrin spoke of the advantages that would accrue from the fair. He ridiculed the charge that Chicago's reputation for extemporaneous gun fights would keep outsiders away. He said much of what the fair would do for commerce and science.

Breen said that times have changed since the days of the Columbian Exposition. It's a swift ago, he pointed out, with no time for people to fritter away around such an old-fashioned institution as a fair. Merchants can't be persuaded to exhibit, because they have so many trade expositions of their own. Besides, Chicago has an evil reputation for thieves and murderers, and how can one expect the people to subscribe a $50-000,000 fund for the fair when they fear it may be dissipated in payroll and political graft, he argued.

When the judges voted him the victory, the crowd laughed at the picture of a press agent turning his weapons on himself with such deplorable results.

Elmer J. Buckley, chairman of the publicity division of the fair, rushed to the rescue.

"Mr. Breen was drafted for this debate," he said. "We tried all over town to find someone to take the negative. Finally Breen had to do it, because no one else would."

After all, as one listener was heard to remark, the whole thing may have been a press agent coup.

STATE INSTITUTION SURVEY MEASURE IS INTRODUCED

Representative Ricketts of St. Louis Presents Bill Carrying Out Gov. Caul-field's Plans.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 1.—Gov. Caulfield's plans for an exhaustive survey of the educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions of the state with a view to the submission of a bond issue next year, assumed definite shape with the introduction by Representative Ricketts of St. Louis in the House today of the Governor's bill.

The measure provides for the appointment by the Governor of a bipartisan commission of four members, empowered to employ such expert architectural, building and technical advice as may be considered necessary for a complete examination of all State institutions. The commission is to report to the Governor as soon as its work is finished, which, it is thought, will be about next November. The Governor then will consider the advisability of calling a special session of the Legislature to consider bond issue legislation.

To Serve Without Salary.
While there has not been even a partial official survey, it has been roughly estimated that a bond issue of approximately $25,000,000 will be necessary to provide the badly needed buildings and equip them. As was told in the Post-Dispatch last December conditions at the eleemosynary institutions are particularly bad, the main buildings at the Fulton, St. Joseph and Nevada Hospitals for the insane being dangerous fire traps. They house more than 2000 insane patients.

It is the Governor's idea that it is better to have a commission of experts to conduct the survey and employ the highest type of professional advice, than to attempt to obtain the services of out-standing architects, builders and technical men. The members of the commission will serve without salary. It is probable the four commissioners will be members of the Legislature, two Senators and two Representatives, though the bill does not limit membership to members of the Legislature. It is not unlikely that it will be amended to provide that limitation on the Governor in his selection of Commissioners.

Not to Rush Matters.
Because of the large number of other questions before the Legislature, the Governor was in no hurry to get the bill in time for a survey during the session and action before adjournment of the regular session in May. The right sort of a survey, he thinks, will take about six months.

When the report is submitted, it is his intention to have the Attorney-General draw the necessary bills to submit a bond issue and to provide for a body to supervise the expenditure of the funds, and then to call the Legislature into extraordinary session, probably next January, to consider them. He probably would not include in the call any other matter of legislation.

VEGETABLE SOUFFLES ARE APPETIZING FOR LUNCHEON

Ingenuity Required to Turn Out a Successful Dish of This Type.

Vegetable souffles are appetizing, delightful and nourishing luncheon dishes. They are simple to make.

as most of them use a plain white sauce as a base. This is made by adding five tablespoons of flour to four tablespoons melted butter, stirring in a cup of milk, and cooking the mixture until it is very thick and smooth. Season highly with salt and pepper, a few drops of Worcestershire sauce, perhaps a little grated onion or any other flavoring that blends with the vegetable used. Add two well beaten egg yolks and then one cup of any cooked vegetable pulp. Corn, very finely mashed turnips, lima beans rubbed through a sieve, a mixture of carrots and peas, steamed squash, asparagus—any of these are good. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of eggs, pour the mixture into a buttered shallow baking dish, bake in a hot oven for 25 minutes or until well puffed and golden brown. Serve very hot and as soon as possible after baking. Delicious Chestnut Soup. Pick over, wash and cook Italian chestnuts in boiling water two minutes. Drain, gash, cool and remove shells. There should be one pint of shelled chestnuts. Add one quart chicken stock, bring to boil, in point and simmer.

SMOKED FISH PRONOUNCED PALATABLE BY MOST PEOPLE

On a Bitter Cold Day It Adds Zest to the Appetite.

Smoked fish offers a good variety for winter meals and many people enjoy its agreeable and distinctive flavor. Among the best known are haddock, smoked sturgeon, salmon, white fish, finnan haddie and herring. All these may be used in many ways as appetizers, hot dishes, sandwich fillings and salads. Smoked fish retains all of the nutritive value of the fresh fish so far as protein and mineral matter are concerned. Only the water is removed. Smoked fish is, therefore, a more concentrated food than fresh fish, and the water can be put back by soaking if desired. Finnan haddie, for instance, which is simply smoked haddock, is always soaked to freshen it somewhat before cooking. The fish that are used in salads or as appetizers do not require soaking.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN WEEK'S MENUS

Preparing Meals and Using Leftovers Should Be an Easy Problem.

Veal that is thoroughly cooked is no more indigestible than other meats. It cooks best in a moderate temperature as in this way the fibers have time to soften more completely, and the meat is very tender. Cold veal has much the flavor of chicken and can be used in many recipes calling for that more expensive meat. Veal salad is just as appetizing as chicken; creamed veal, served with a border of boiled rice, is equally appetizing and equal to creamed chicken, and chopped veal, moistened with mayonnaise, makes sandwiches that are just as acceptable as chicken sandwiches.

Veal and Rice Loaf. Mix together two cups of boiled rice and three cups of finely chopped cooked veal. The remnants of a left-over roast, or a piece of boiled veal may be used. Add one teaspoon of grated lemon rind, one teaspoon or more of salt, two table-spoons of chili sauce, one well-beaten egg, and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley. Mix well and add left-over gravy, or milk to moisten. Pack in a well-greased bread pan and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for forty minutes. Turn out on a hot platter and serve with tomato sauce.

Potato Omelet. Cut enough raw potatoes into very small dice to make one and one-half cupsful. Melt two table-spoons of butter or bacon fat in frying pan, and add the potatoes and one tablespoon minced onion. Cover the pan and cook rather slowly for about ten minutes or until the potatoes are tender and brown. Meanwhile beat six eggs slightly, add one-half cup of milk and salt and pepper to season. Pour over the potatoes and cook slowly until firm. Fold over, turn out on a hot platter and garnish with watercress.

Sausage and Apples. Fry the required number of sausages a rich brown and arrange on a hot chop plate with parsley garnish. Meantime, press sliced tart apples closely into a buttered glass pie plate, sprinkle well with sugar dot with butter and bake in a hot oven until the apples are soft and lightly browned, covering the first part of the time. Serve hot with the sausages accompanied with hot corn bread.

Vegetable Chowder. Take six carrots, four medium-sized turnips, six medium-sized potatoes and six onions. Allow one cup of meat liquor to four cups water for cooking vegetables. Bring to boiling point, cover prepared vegetables and cook gently until tender.

FRY CEREALS FOR A CHANGE

This Manner of Serving Cereals is a Cold Weather Delicacy.

Fried cereal, especially cornflakes, hominy and the like, makes a dish that can be used as a change from the regular hot cereal. Simply slice the cold cereal, dip in flour, or dip in beaten egg, and then in hot bacon or sausage fat, and fry with maple syrup or honey, or replace part of the fat with a welcome variety in the breakfast dish.

A Revelation In Toast-Making

As Millions Now Testify

This Slo-baked Bread Dietitians are Endorsing

To get it, you go to your grocer. He has it fresh daily. But first please note the rather remarkable facts we print below. Particularly our now famous "toasting test."

Now comes a new way to golden brown toast. A proven way that largely eliminates burned, uneven edges, and produces perfect toast in quicker time. It's a delicious bread that you use. A slo-baked bread extremely dainty in flavor. Also easier to slice, and amazing in its freshness.

To use it once is to insist on it always. Millions of women have found this to be so. So get it, please, today. Ask for it always by the name, "Wonder Bread," to avoid all possible confusion with ordinary brands.

How It Promotes Health

As the new-day bread for toast, Wonder Bread has won women by the millions. But in considering this, please do not overlook the wonderful things it does in fostering a healthy, happy family.

In the matter of caloric value it is most remarkable. Each loaf you buy contains more than 1100 calories.

Hence if eaten daily Wonder Bread replaces as much as 30% of all the energy your children burn up in play. Thus it promotes active minds and bodies, and brings a new glow to pallid faces. It provides, in addition, much necessary protein. The food element, as you may know, that replaces

Make This Amazing Test

Here's a test that proves how good Wonder Bread really is: Take a slice of Wonder Bread and a slice of any ordinary bread. Then toast each the same length of time. The Wonder Bread toast will be browned evenly over the entire surface. No scorched edges. No untoasted spots. The other partially, and unevenly browned. This test will astonish you. Just try it!

We use double the usual amount of milk. Every drop is pasteurized.

We employ, too, a special method of baking. Slo-baking, it is called. A proven, scientific way that seals in the dietetic value of our ingredients and vastly improves their flavor.

Won't You Try It?

So please try Wonder Bread today. Simply to prove what it offers you and yours. Note its dainty flavor. Its freshness. See how evenly it toasts. How easily it slices.

But remember! Ordinary breads are not like this. Avoid them. Insist on Wonder Bread always. Only from this one remarkable bread come the benefits described above. Hence, since it costs no more, to accept any substitute is folly.

And oh, the combination! Turn it over on your tongue. Crunch. M-m-m! How's that for crispness? For blend of flavors? For the downright pleasure of eating something good for breakfast? And when you've tried that you'll soon learn other good ways to serve Muffets. Add sliced bananas, stewed figs, canned peaches or berries—what's your favorite fruit? Muffets will go with it beautifully. Oh, there are tastes you didn't know a whole wheat cereal could produce! And you'll never know till you've had whole wheat in Muffet form. PECAN MUFFINS ARE DAINTY Easily Made and Appropriate For a Luncheon Dish.

Mix and sift one and one-half cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one tablespoon of sugar, and one-half teaspoon of salt. Beat one egg until light, add three-fourths cup of milk and two tablespoons of melted fat. Stir the liquid into the dry material, and beat until smooth. It may be necessary to add two or three tablespoons more of milk; the batter should be just thick enough to drop easily from the spoon.

When well mixed stir in one-half cup of finely chopped pecan nut meats. Pour the batter into well greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven—425 degrees—for 20 to 25 minutes.

Try This Next Time.

Add a little baking powder to the bread or rice pudding. It will never be heavy or soggy.

WHY OYSTERS ARE WHOLESOME

Either Cooked or Raw, They Are Equally Good.

Oysters are easily digested, and are a nutritious sea food. Raw oysters are a little more digestible than cooked ones, but when properly cooked they are often recommended as food for invalids. Oysters have a large percentage of water, some fat, a good percentage of protein and are especially rich in mineral salts, particularly iodine.
They are only good during the "R" months, so make use of them while you have the opportunity.

DIFFERENT DISHES

FOR LENTEN MEALS

Often Difficult to Provide Foods That Will Prove Satisfying.

The Creoles developed a group of thick soups made without meat, that were widely used on fast days, especially during Lent. A variety of vegetables, dried peas, lentils, beans, green peas, and the thick cream mixtures supplied the bulk and the nutrient that were required. In addition to these, which the modern housewife may readily use, there are many other dishes that can be made from the dried vegetables, from rice, the macaroni pastes, and from cheese.

By the use of a little ingenuity and a little more careful planning, it is not difficult to prepare Lenten meals that are appetizing and that furnish sufficient variety.

Aside from the vegetables and grains, fish is widely used, and the salt and smoked fish will be found a help in the varieties of fresh fish available are limited.

There are few foods that enjoy such a wide popularity as do dried beans. The familiar baked beans, whether they be the commercial ready-to-serve product bought in the cans, or the home-cooked variety. Baked beans may be made into a delicious chowder that, with fruit, will make a substantial luncheon; they may be rubbed through a strainer, combined with tomato juice, boiled rice, a little chopped green pepper and cooked diced celery, to make a loaf that may be baked and served with tomato sauce. They make good croquettes, excellent salads and sandwiches, and may even be turned into a soufflé.

Lentils may be used in the making of soups and purees; macaroni pastes combined with milk, cheese, vegetables or fish have high nutritive value and may be served in the form of scalloped, croquettes, stews, salads and loaves.

There are a great many vegetable combinations, but perhaps one that is not quite so usual, and for that reason more attractive, is a vegetable stew made by cooking together dried kidney beans, carrots, onions, diced celery, diced potatoes and tomatoes until a thoroughly blended and savory stew results. This takes about one hour and a half slow cooking. At the end of that time butter, salt and pepper are added for seasoning, and small dumplings are dropped in the mixture, which is cooked 10 minutes longer.

By making use of some of these suggestions in the planning of your difficult meals during this Lenten period, you will find that it is comparatively easy matter to serve meals that are flavorful and that yet meet the requirements of the season.

SOME TASTY RECIPES FOR

CANNED SALMON COOKERY

Even Epicures Will Delight in These Intriguing and Different Dishes.

The possibilities of a can of salmon are beyond the belief of the average housewife, who generally removes the fish from the can and serves it either cold or else warm following a few minutes' stay in a hot oven or over a low flame.

As a matter of fact, canned salmon makes delicious patties, croquettes, salads, fish chops, baked dishes, escalloped combinations and sandwiches. Recipes for several of these dishes follow:

Salmon Timbales.
One can salmon, four hard-boiled eggs, three eggs, salt, pepper, lemon juice, white sauce, parsley. Flake salmon into bits, removing all bones and skin; rub the yolks of four hard-boiled eggs to a paste and stir them into the white of the eggs as fine as possible and stir them into the salmon mixture; season with salt, white pepper, lemon juice and a dash of cayenne; beat the mixture into the well-beaten yolks of three eggs; add the whites of eggs beaten stiff; pour into buttered nappies or timbale cases; set these in pan of boiling water and bake about 25 minutes; turn out on hot platter; pour about the timbales a white sauce into which chopped parsley has been stirred.

Creamed Salmon.
One can salmon, one quart sweet milk, three ounces butter, three eggs, two ounces flour, one ounce chopped onion, salt, pepper. Melt together butter and flour and when creamy add one quart of hot milk; add onion, salt and pepper; break in three eggs and draw to back of stove till eggs set and will remain in chunks when stirred;
add salmon after removing skin and bones; put back on fire and let boil up once.

Salmon-Stuffed Hot Rolls.
Take ordinary full crust rolls.
Cut off the tops of the rolls, scoop out the crumbs, brush inside and outside with melted butter and put into hot oven until they are a delicate brown. Make a creamed salmon with chopped parsley and the whites of hard-boiled eggs in it.
Heat the cases, fill with the creamed salmon, cover, and serve.

Citrus Fruits Healthful.
While known as acid fruits, oranges and lemons are often prescribed by physicians for cases of acidity. This is due to the fact that these fruits have an alkaline reaction after digestion. They are thus a very good balance to the acid-producing foods, such as bread, cereals, and meats.

DUMPLINGS AND CHICKEN

This Combination Is Always Satisfactory for a Family Dinner.

Sift two cups of flour with one-half teaspoon of salt and three teaspoons of baking powder. Rub in two teaspoons of butter or any preferred fat, and add enough milk to make a dough that is just too soft to handle, and that will drop easily from the spoon.

Be sure the chicken mixture is boiling, drop the dumplings in from a teaspoon, cover the pan and cook slowly for 10 minutes. Lifting the cover before the dumplings are done will make them soggy or heavy. This makes enough for six people.

"Good as Granny's"

As they munch, they voice approval. "Light as Granny's, brown as Granny's, when we used to snatch one as they cooled." Just the same old fashioned flavor.

FIVE UNIQUE WAYS OF SERVING PEACHES

The Canned Variety Is Quite as Satisfactory as the Fresh Fruit.

In these, between seasons when fresh fruits have not begun to come into the local market, housewives find it expedient to use canned peaches on the family table.

The canned article is delicious served as it comes from the can, in combination with other articles of food or in cooked dishes.

The following recipes for making several of these dishes will be found very satisfactory.

Peach Cocktail.

Drain two cups of sliced canned peaches. To one-half cup of peach syrup add juice of half an orange, one tablespoon of lemon juice and one or two teaspoons of powdered sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved, pour over the peaches and chill thoroughly. Then arrange this in six small sherbet cups and garnish with a maraschino cherry, or two crystallized or fresh mint leaves.

Peach Appetizer.

Take two cups of sliced canned peaches and drain syrup for later use.

Cut the slices in halves. To one-half cup of peach syrup add one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon orange juice, one tablespoon sugar and one-fourth cup finely diced sweet pickle. Chill the fruit mixture and the pickles separately for an hour or more. Just before serving, arrange the sliced peaches in cocktail glasses and pour over them the dressing which has been mixed with the pickles.

Peach Dessert.

Put six peach halves in six ice cream glasses, cut side up. Remove stones from six dried prunes and chop fruit fine. Add one-fourth cup finely chopped pecans and enough syrup from peaches to make a soft paste.

Fill depression in the peaches with this mixture, place another peach half on top, cut side down, making a whole peach. Pour a spoonful of syrup from peaches over and sprinkle with chopped nuts. This may be served with whipped cream.

Peaches Salad.

Arrange six nests of lettuce leaves and in each nest shredded celery, green pepper cut in fine strips, and a peach half. In cavity of peach place a ball of cream or cottage cheese seasoned with salt and moistened with cream. Stick salted almonds cut in fine strips in the cheese. Serve with the following peach dressing: Heat one-half cup peach syrup and pour slowly onto 2 egg yolks beaten until light. Cook and stir over hot water until thick; add few grains salt, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon sugar and one-eighth teaspoon paprika. Chill before serving.

Peach Pie.

Drain two and one-quarter cups sliced peaches. Fill a pastry-lined pie pan with them. Sprinkle with one-half cup brown sugar that has been mixed with one tablespoon flour. Pour over all one-half cup syrup drained from the peaches. Put on top crust and bake in a hot oven until brown.

ENDIVE FOR SALAD

This Salad Is Being Featured at the Very Formal Noon.

The French endive, which we know best, grows very much like a stalk of celery without the leafy top, and is considered a great delicacy. Its slightly bitter taste is particularly refreshing in salads. It may be obtained throughout most of the year, and although more expensive to buy than most salad plants, there is no waste to it, as every leaf can be used for the table.

To prepare endive for the table separate the stalks, wash and allow to stand in cold water. Arrange on salad plates and serve with Tarragon dressing. Garnish with strips of pimiento or green pepper or stuffed olives.

Goldenrod Toast.

Chop the whites of three hard-cooked eggs coarsely; mix with one cupful of white sauce and add two tablespoonsful of minced ham. Serve on hot buttered toast with the yolks fixed over all.

ALMOND TORTE IS NICE

A Rich Sweet That Is Featured At Fashionable Cafes.

One-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, four egg yolks, one cup flour, two teaspoonsful baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, five tablespoons milk, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and sugar well, and beat beaten egg yolks into the creamed mixture. Sift baking powder, salt and flour together and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Add vanilla. Place batter in two small layer cake pans and cover with a meringue made of four egg whites, three-fourths cup sugar and one teaspoon almond extract.

Do not let the meringue come up to the sides of the pans. Leave half an inch to sides of pan, as the meringue spreads while baking. Cover meringue with blanched almonds, split. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream between layers. This may also be served with raspberries or ice cream between layers.

THE COOK'S ABILITY TAXED BY BISCUITS

Most Persons Expend Too Much Effort and Care on Mixing Dough.

The difficulty that so many people have in making biscuits is due to the fact that they work so hard over them. A light, fluffy biscuit is the result of quick, light mixing and handling. No other product, with the possible exception of pie crust, is so labored over or that causes so many sighs and tears.

Resolve, therefore, to follow directions explicitly and to work quickly.

To make enough biscuits for two people, sift together one and one-half cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder. Grease a baking pan, and light the oven. Add one and one-half tablespoons of fat—butter or any of the vegetable fats you prefer. Work the fat into the flour with a fork or one of those clever little pastry choppers that you can buy in any department store.

When there are no large lumps of fat to be seen, add one-third cup of milk, mixing it in with the fork, and working just as lightly as possible. The dough should be just soft enough to handle easily without being sticky. It may sometimes be necessary to add a little more liquid, as flours vary in their composition, and some absorb more liquid than others.

Turn the dough out on a floured board and pat it lightly with the palm of the hand to a scant half-inch thickness. Shape with a small cutter, gather the scraps lightly together, pat them out again, and cut the rest of the biscuits. You should have six medium sized or eight small biscuits from this amount of dough. Place on the baking pan and bake in a hot oven for eight to 10 minutes.

These same biscuits may be changed into baked dumplings by placing them close together on the top of hot stewed fruit, beef stew, etc., and baking for the same length of time in a hot oven. The fruit or stew should be hot to aid in quick cooking and to prevent the dough becoming soggy by soaking up the liquid.

If you are having a bridge party or are serving Sunday night supper, cheese biscuits make an excellent accompaniment to almost any salad. Use the recipe given, adding to the flour one-fourth cup of grated stale cheese. If you are serving a number of people it will probably be necessary to double the recipe. The biscuit mixture may be put together omitting only the liquid, and kept in a cold place until ready to bake. It takes only a few minutes to add the liquid, shape the biscuits and pop them into the oven. This is a good plan to use for company meals.

BREAD IS A VALUABLE FOOD
In These Days This Fact Is Often Entirely Lost Sight Of.
In these days of so much intelligent dieting it is well to remember that bread is a valuable part of our daily food supply.

Well made, well baked bread supplies the body with the elements that create heat and energy; when the bread is made with milk it adds the necessary calcium for bone and teeth development and the yeast contributes vitamin B, which is essential for preventing some of the deficiency diseases.

Foods Containing Iron.
For iron eat spinach, eggs—especially yolks—string beans and lima beans, peas, whole-wheat bread, oatmeal, almonds, lean beef, dates, figs, raisins, prunes, walnuts, brown rice, lettuce, all salad greens, carrots, potatoes, asparagus, cabbage, beets, melons, bran.

For lime: Milk, cheese, especially cottage and cream cheese; all eggs, bread, egg yolks, spinach, cauliflower, buttermilk, turnips and watercress.

Spunky Cocktail.
To yolk of one egg add one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon mustard and two tablespoons vinegar. Slowly beat in one-half cup olive oil. Chop one hard-cooked egg, two tablespoons celery, one tablespoon green pepper, one tablespoon sweet pickles, one tablespoon onion, two tablespoons chili sauce, and add to the mayonnaise. Arrange the crabmeat in cold cocktail glasses and pour the sauce over the fish.

A Different Corn Pudding.
To two cups canned corn add two well-beaten eggs, two tablespoons chopped pimientos, two tablespoons melted butter, three-fourths cup milk and salt and pepper to taste. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover top with buttered crumbs mixed with an equal amount of grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until set and browned on top.

Grapefruit Crab Cocktail.
Cut grapefruit in halves, cross-wise and remove the tough portions. In the middle and over the fruit pile crabmeat which has been highly seasoned with tabasco sauce, lemon juice and salt.

For That Fishy Odor.
If your forks smell fishy after serving fish, add a teaspoon of dry mustard to the dishwater. It will carry off the odor.

Why Not Try This?
If a little vinegar is added occasionally to the water in which table glass is rinsed, it will give extra brightness to the glass.

HAM BOUCHEES

Make circular bread cases an inch deep and saute in olive oil. Fill with a highly seasoned puree of ham and garnish the top with a radish which has been cut in fancy shape and allowed to stand several hours in ice water. Arrange a few small cress leaves at the base of the radish.

Add Lemon to Cooked Figs.
Dried figs, stewed with a slice of lemon or orange, make a good variation when served as a breakfast food.

GRABMEAT CROQUETTES

A Distinctive Tidbit for a Bridge Luncheon or a Formal Tea. Combine one pound shredded crabmeat, one teaspoonful grated onion, one teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce, juice one-half lemon, and cayenne pepper. Make a white sauce, using two tablespoonfuls flour, and one cupful milk as the basis. Season the white sauce to taste and add the crab mixture to this. Put in a pan to a depth of two inches, and place in the ice box to stiffen.

When ready to be used, cut the mixture into two-inch squares, roll in cracker crumbs and beaten milk, and saute until golden brown on all sides. Mix one cupful mayonnaise and chopped cucumber. Serve with croquettes.

A CAN OF TUNA OFFERS MANY APPETIZING CULINARY TREATS

Several Cans of This Fish Should Always Be on the Pantry Shelf.

While very many housewives serve canned fish in its natural condition or else simply heated, there are innumerable ways in which canned fish may be utilized in cooked and combination dishes. Tuna fish, for instance, though delicious when served cold or reheated, is most tempting when made up into croquettes, salads, patties and sandwiches as a tryout of the appended recipes will demonstrate.

Tuna Fish Croquettes.
One can tuna flaked, one and one-half cups heavy white sauce, season to taste with onion juice, paprika and salt. Mold into croquettes. Roll in cracker crumbs and egg, again in cracker crumbs. Fry in deep oil to a golden brown. Garnish with lemon and water cress.

Tuna Fish Salad.
Flake one can of tuna; chop together three sweet pickles, one small onion and pimientos. Mix lightly with mayonnaise. Several spoons of tomato catsup improves flavor. Season with paprika and salt. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Top with mayonnaise and garnish with sliced hard-boiled egg and pimiento strips. This same mixture as a stuffing for tomatoes is delicious.

Tuna Fish à la King.
One can tuna, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, yolks of two eggs and one cup of cream. Melt the butter, add the flour and cook till it thickens. Beat the yolks of the eggs till they are light, mix in the cream, add the flaked tuna, stir until heated well but do not allow to boil. Serve on slices of hot toast.

Another Use for Salt.
Rub salt on the hands before preparing fish and no fish odor will cling to the hands.

BASS GAINS DECISION OVER ABAD IN FURIOUS 10-ROUND

PHILADELPHIAN DROPS OPPONENT FOR NINE COUNT IN FIRST ROUND

THE RESULTS

Official decisions are not permitted under the Missouri boxing law. Following are the Post-Dispatch decisions:

Benny Bass, Philadelphia, outpointed Dave Abad, Panama, 10 rounds. Base 127 1/2 pounds. Abad 130. Referee, Walter Heiser.

Mike Esposto, New York, outpointed Paul Steadman, St. Louis, 10 rounds. Esposto 123 pounds. Steadman 125 1/2. Referee, Harry Sharpe.

Tom Pivar, St. Louis, scored a technical knockout over Eddie Meyers, Indianapolis, fifth round. Pivar 175 pounds. Meyers 183. Referee, Walter Heiser.

Frank Fought outpointed Jimmy Reed 10 rounds. Fought 163 pounds. Reed 162. Referee, Harry Sharpe.

Leo Patterson outpointed Ralph Long, 6 rounds. 130 pounds. Referee, Harry Sharpe.

By Dent McKimling

Dave Abad's self-confidence is justified. On the eve of his fight with Benny Bass, at the Coliseum last night, Abad declared that he felt no uneasiness regarding the terrible Bass right hand. At the end of 10 rounds, Abad was not only conscious and unhurt but he was skipping about in his corner, apparently fresh and full of vitality. He had stopped many Bass right crosses with his head, and he had taken count nine while stretched on the floor, but he had won the admiration of a crowd of 8000 by his display of grit and his boxing skill.

Bass carried off the unofficial victory by knocking Abad down for the long count in the first round and by subsequently jolting the Panama rubber ball almost out of the building. A check of the canvas showed Abad three and three were even.

In his efforts to hit the bobbing head of the crouched Abad, Bass rammed many a stiff right cross into this air. In the closing round the Philadelphia boy tried to remove whatever doubt might exist as to which was the winner. He rushed Abad from one side of the ring to the other, measuring and swinging, but that bobbing head was never just where Bass expected to find it and the hooks and crosses just brushed Abad's hair. The Panama rubber ball seemed to delight in making Bass miss, but the medicine tasted so bitter to Bass that he seemed to lose his head and after the bell sounded he continued slamming at Abad's body and head. The crowd roared in delight. Bass' discomfiture and little Benny seemed to become exasperated. But a minute later, when the gloves were removed, he went to Abad's corner and shook hands, laughing good.

Rest of Carl Flivvers

Fortunately for the promoters, the Bass-Abad fight was worth the price of admission, for the rest of the card was a flivver. The only other bout that got a rise out of the crowd was that between Mike Esposto, a New York Italian, and Paul Steadman of St. Louis. Esposto gave a masterful exhibition of fast boxing but he ruined a good part of his work by unnecessary wrestling. Steadman, all seriousness, tried to knock a grin off Esposto's face but failed. Mike was the winner all the way.

Whenever there were 10 rounds to a close decision and then come back and go 10 more rounds without either getting knocked out the skeptical sport public is inclined to become a little more skeptical. It is only fair to Bass and Abad to point that any one of a dozen right crosses Bass let go at the Panama boy's jaw would have turned the entire Abad family dizzy had it landed as apparently intended. The actual knockdown in the first round, just one minute after the opening bell, was not nearly so clean a punch as many that followed, especially in the fourth round, but it caught Abad when he was off balance rebounding from the ropes, and he sank to the canvas as though to have time to clear his head.

The second and the third rounds were not typical Benny Bass rounds. It appeared that he might be willing to carry Abad along, but the beans were spilled when the Panama boy got reckless and jerked a half dozen left hooks to Benny's head and ripped a left hook to the stomach.

Abad Comes Back Strong. There was a bit of a conference in the Bass corner after the third round and the boys sounded. Bass stepped out as though for business. He swooped down on his prey and let the right go. It landed. The same dose was repeated at least four times and Abad reeled, apparently on the verge of a knockout. Stagger and reel, he would, but not fall. Finally, Bass seemed to lose the range and Abad came back fighting. Standing toe to toe they slugged each other. The crowd went wild with excitement.

The fifth was even more lively and the action continued unabated in the sixth and seventh. In the middle of the seventh, as Referee Walter Heiser tied the two men

Johnson Tells How Brownie Pitcher Used Razor to Fool Opposing Batters

BAN JOHNSON'S OWN STORY

Substantially as told by him in interviews extending over a period of a year, reported stenographically in many instances, and compiled in the present form

By John E. Wray and J. Roy Stockton.

CHAPTER XX—Development of Rules and Equipment.

Copyright, 1929, by the Publisher Publishing Co. (The St. Louis Post-Dispatch).

THERE have been many changes in the rules of baseball, and in the equipment of the players during my life and perhaps the record of the period would be incomplete without reference to the development of those phases of the game.

First, I would like to say that I consider the rules of today about as correct as we could have them. I have only one suggestion to make and that is that the game might be improved for the spectators and the average length of the contests reduced through a rule placing a limitation on the number of substitutes who can be inserted into a lineup.

To me it always has been annoying to pick up a sport page and see box scores showing 15 or more players on one team. Those substitutions make for delay and drag out a game, and a strategic value change may have from a manager's standpoint, are more than offset by the annoyance to the spectators. Such changes destroy a team's identity and take away the fans' interest in the team and the individual members of that team, are important factors in professional baseball and its popularity.

It is for that reason that I cannot look with any favor on the suggestion recently made by Mr. Heydler for a 10-man team, with the pitcher excused from batting and the tenth man taking his place on the attack. That destroys the original thoughts of baseball and the baseball nine and also is contrary to the best interests of the individual. The sport primarily is to develop athletes and athletes to prowess and I can look with no favor on a rule which would make it unnecessary for the pitcher to train as a batter and a runner.

Rules Are Satisfactory.

Not only are the rules highly satisfactory today, but the equipment is about all that could be desired and in the equipment the development of the game is illustrated in striking manner. What better comparison could there be than to place an old-time catcher's mask and a modern one side by side.

Fifty years ago the only gloves worn on the baseball field were thin things that the catcher used to protect his hands. Some wore one kid glove and others two, with the ends of the fingers cut out, so the gloves would not interfere with throwing. Then the catcher began to pad one of the gloves a little and along about 1881 the big catching mitt came into use. The mitt was catching for the Overlin College team that year and I distinctly remember the first catcher's mitt I ever saw. Pete Walker, who caught for Toledo, was the first to appear with a glove and a mask, entirely new to us, in a game with our nine.

The mask at first was looked at suspiciously, and it was a risk in itself, as for a few days the wire guard and there was danger of the eyes being gouged out. Before the mask appeared the catchers had only their kid gloves and a rubber mouthpiece to protect them. The rubber was held between the teeth, so if a foul tip happened to hit the catcher in the face, it would not knock out many teeth. These were heavy days. The players didn't mind bruises, but they did want to keep their teeth. The bruises would heal, I remember times during my catching days when my body was covered with scars.

apart, the fingers of his left hand slipped into Abad's right eye. The lid was turned back and Dave raised both hands in sign of distress and Heiser called time while he turned the lid down in its normal position. Only a few seconds were lost and the boys went right back, trading punch for punch.

Each landed a low blow in the late rounds but neither boxer complained. In the eighth Abad's ripping left hook found Benny's stomach repeatedly and Bass' fellow begged him to "fight him, Benny, fight him." In the ninth, Abad shook Bass by his heels with an overhead right to the head but as the tenth opened Bass almost stopped the fight by whipping three rights to the head. The finish was wildly exciting with both boys in a head-to-head position. Abad touched the right spot many times but his blows lacked power and Bass was never able to get his punch home to the edge of the ring. Heiser and the seconds from both corners had to pull the boys away from each other after the game. Neither boxer was badly marked up.

According to the promoters' figures, there were 612 paid admissions for a gross gate of $12,227. It was estimated by Police Lieutenant Meyer that 8000 persons were in the Coliseum.

Joseph "Big Boy" Kelly was ill and John "Darby" Kelly was the two men

Ban Johnson is still interested in the development of baseball. On a recent trip to Mexico he witnessed a game between the police and firemen of Mexico City. He offered a set of new uniforms to the winning team, and the photograph shows him inspecting the outfits. The "Policia" won.

Then the body protector made its appearance and finally Roger Bresnahan introduced the shin guards. Shin guards now are taken as a matter of course, but when Bresnahan had the temerity to appear on the field with them, he was the laughing stock of the fraternity some time. But he was able to make a more determined stand at the plate in tagging sliding base runners and soon all the catchers were similarly equipped.

The "Lively" Ball.

No discussion of the rules and equipment would be complete without reference to the baseball and in that connection I want to correct a common error. The original thoughts of baseball and the baseball nine and also is contrary to the best interests of the individual. The sport primarily is to develop athletes and athletes to prowess and I can look with no favor on a rule which would make it unnecessary for the pitcher to train as a batter and a runner.

Perhaps there was a change in the ball, but it was a result of economic conditions and not due to any desire to change the game or to make for more base hits. The ball always has been made by a Philadelphia company, which manufactured both National and American League official balls. The only difference has been in the stitching and the label. Both were made of the same material.

Until the great war started and during much of the war period, select Australian wool was imported to be used in the manufacture of the baseballs. As ocean navigation became more dangerous, the manufacturers found it more difficult to obtain this Australian wool and for a long period an inferior grade was used in the manufacture.

Then when the Australian wool again was available it made a tremendous difference in the ball.

Freddie Ciccotti was one of the shrewd trick pitchers. Nobody ever found exactly what he did. His delivery was called the "shine ball" but nobody knew how he got his results.

Dave Danforth of the Browns was another pitcher who was in hot water frequently. It was charged that he picked his hand in some mixture to make it hard and callous so that he easily could rough the ball while he held it ready to pitch.

One day he pitched a new ball just once. The batter did not offer at it and the umpire got possession of it and sent it to me. It had been rubbed rough in one spot. Phil Ball, owner and Bob Quinn, business manager of the Browns, naturally took Danforth's part. They immediately said he had not used anything and that he had used a trip to St. Louis about it. Ball and Quinn were very much wrought up over the incident and assured me that Danforth was innocent of any wrong doing.

However, I took Danforth into a room. I took the ball out of my pocket, showed him a rough spot and asked him if he had done it. He immediately said he had and that he had used the matter. I called in Ball and Quinn and told them Danforth had confessed. He did not pitch any more for the Browns that season.

There was another incident in St. Louis which was called to my attention, but nobody was punished because we could not fasten it on any individual. A Plot Uncovered.

Cleveland was playing the Browns at Sportsman's Park and I believe Guy Morton was the Cleveland pitcher that day. The St. Louis pitcher, whose name I will not mention, was going along in great style. The Cleveland batters could not touch his delivery.

Then the pre-arranged plans went wrong. A Cleveland batter fled to the outfield for the third time in the game. The ball was immediately to the pitcher's box and Morton obtained it. His first pitch sailed a yard over Carter Steve O'Neill's head and Morton, O'Neill and the umpire immediately knew the pitcher was wrong. The ball was retrieved and it was found that the leather rear one of his seam, had been cut open, apparently with a razor blade.

The umpire became suspicious and an examination showed that every one of the balls in the supply bag, furnished before the game, had been cut in the same way. The balls, of course, were discarded and a new supply was called for.

It developed afterward that an infielder and a trainer had been in the "plot," probably along with the pitcher. After each inning, the pitcher or infielder would get the ball and smooth the cut place, so it would not be noticed when Morton was pitching.

However, the game was going along so nicely that when that fly ball ended a late inning, the plotters forgot for a moment and the lapse of memory resulted in the discovery of what was happening.

Freddie Ciccotti Pitching.

A desire to restore an even balance between the pitcher and the batter and to curb the growing tendency to tamper with the baseball and experiment with all sorts of dangerous delivery caused the major leagues in the winter of 1919-20 to legislate against the so-called spitball and other freak deliveries. The principal clamor had been against the spitball but when the first case of the spitball was made available it made a tremendous difference in the ball.

LOS ANGELES IS EASY WINNER IN SERIES OPENER

By Gerald Holland

It isn't likely that anyone of the 1000 persons who watched the Los Angeles basketball team defeat the Crescents at the St. Louis University gymnasium last night is in doubt about the outcome of the series that will decide the municipal championship and St. Louis' entrant in the National Amateur Athletic Union tournament at Kansas City.

Los Angeles demonstrated conclusively that the possibility of a third game is remote by limiting Armand Wahlbrink's youngsters to just one field goal in winning, 51 to 10. Respect of the losing team dropped in the lone field basket after 10 minutes of play in the first half.

Although Los Angeles has been the favorite to win the championship since it entered the final, its wide margin over the Crescents was a distinct surprise. The latter team, composed of young players, fresh from County High School League competition, fast and well coached, was expected to furnish hard opposition. However, Los Angeles, with four star high school players of last season, and the steady influence of Vernon Bradburn, who knows just about every trick of the game, gave few opportunities.

Held to One Field Goal.

The Crescents were no match for the smooth offense of Bradburn and his forwards, Flannery and Kennedy, or the excellent defensive play of Bonifer and Mueller at the guards. The result was that after holding the opposition even for two minutes, Crescent was unable to stop Flannery and Bradburn, who scored a total of 23 points between them. Trailing 16-6 at the half, the Crescents scored nothing but free throws in the second period.

Vernon Bradburn lost several valuable players in mid-season when Washington University freshman were withdrawn from the squad and Los Angeles was forced to continue with only two reserve players—Cronin and O'Toole. Only one substitute was in good condition last night.

O'Toole having been slightly injured in a workout. The preliminary game served to balance the program with the I. A. A. C. Accounts taking the first of a series for the Industrial championship from the Wagners in an extra period, 31 to 27. The latter team rallied to tie the score at the end of regulation time on Willard's free throw 22-22, but Butts led a free burst that gave his team a good margin in the extra five minutes.

The second games of the series will be played at Sherman Park Community Center next Monday night.

SEMINALS REACHED IN INTRAMURAL TOURNAY

The league champions who will meet in the semifinal games to be held next Monday in the field house are Beta Theta Pi, League 1; University Club, League 2; Sigma Chi, League 3, and Kappa Sigma, League 4. With the exception of University Club all were seeded teams. This team is favored to win the tournament at the present time on account of decisive victories in all of its league games. Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Chi were the finalists in last season's tournament.

The semifinals schedule calls for Beta Theta Pi versus University Club and Sigma Chi versus Kappa Sigma. The final game will be played next Wednesday night, according to Arthur Schellenberg, student manager of intramural athletics.

CHICAGO WHEAT HIGHER

AT CLOSE AFTER DECLINE

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 1.—Readiness with which bid delivery of wheat on March contracts were absorbed led to uniform rise in wheat values today after initial declines. Total Chicago March deliveries of wheat for the 2,708,000 bushels, except three times as much as had been forecast by some authorities. The report of export business in low-grade wheat at Winnipeg was a strengthening factor for corn, but was not enough to cause a decline in wheat. Wheat closed firm, 5c to 1 1/2c net higher, corn 1/2c to 1 1/2c up, oats 1/2c to 1 1/2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a few cents.

Larger deliveries here on March wheat contracts than expected had an early benefit effect today on wheat values. The wheat thus traded over total amount of 1,000,000 bushels, an amount more than double the figure looked for in some quarters. Opening at the decline to a steady advance, wheat later under a general rise. Corn and oats were bid easier, then corn starting unchanged, but wheat advanced.

In contrast with Chicago March deliveries of wheat at Liverpool today proved to be smaller than expected, and this circumstance had a strengthening influence. However, there was some decline of wheat today into store here, and arrivals of wheat from Kansas City, St. Louis and other points, including Winnipeg, were of considerably greater volume than at a previous time.

Argentine shippers were reported today as pressing wheat for sale in Europe and considering some quantities unsold to be disposed of while affording on ocean passage. Inasmuch as British and Southern European continental ports were the only ones open to navigation at present, these reports were reported as temporarily being flooded with supplies. Meanwhile, heavy world shipments for the week again were expected.

EXPLOSION AND FIRE CAUSE $2000 DAMAGE TO STORE

No Explanation of Blast at 1027 O'Fallon; Negro Tenants Escape Unhurt.

An explosion and fire caused $2000 damage at the grocery of Paul May, 1027 O'Fallon street, at 3:45 p. m. yesterday.

Firemen and gas company employees, following an investigation, reported they were unable to determine the cause of the explosion, which broke windows in two other buildings in the neighborhood. May said he also was unable to account for the blast.

The second floor of the building is occupied by Negroes, who escaped from the building uninjured.

Fire of undetermined origin starting in the elevator shaft of a three-story building at 1419-21 Franklin avenue, occupied by the Pastel Furniture Co., caused $7000 damage at 2:30 a. m. today. Two alarms were turned in.

MICHIGAN HOUSE EXEMPTS DRY VIOLATORS FROM LIFE TERMS

Amendment to Habitual Criminal Code Expected to Pass Senate Without Difficulty.

LANSING, Mich., March 1.—Amendments to Michigan's habitual criminal law under which liquor law violators would be exempted from the life penalty provided for fourth offenders were passed by the lower house of the Legislature today. The vote was 73 to 35.

The amendments now go to the Senate, where proponents of the measure anticipate little difficulty in obtaining favorable action. The amendments were introduced with the approval of Gov. Fred W. Green.

Michigan's crime code became effective Sept. 6, 1927, and since then 15 men and one woman have received life sentences under the habitual criminal section.

Who Was Guilty

Solution of "At the Border" Mystery in Thursday's Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine.

MR. WHITTAKER had died of a heart failure on the hunting trip. His wife and several unscrupulous friends wished her to collect the extra money paid by the insurance company in case of an accidental death, and with this in mind they hurriedly loaded the body into the rumble seat of a fast roadster and drove to the closest large body of water, which happened to be Mooshead Lake, over the border. To get by the customs without having the inspectors discover the corpse, they arranged that Mrs. Whittaker should go first with one man in the Packard and should detract the attention of the inspectors while the roadster hurried through. At a point between the border and the place where phases had to be shown, the body was transferred to the Packard, which had a permit in perfect order, and Mrs. Whittaker was moved to the roadster, which would be stopped and searched, as she did not wish to be on hand at the time of the supposed drowning and as it would take two men to carry off the coup, it was necessary for her to get into men's clothes to impersonate the man who had originally been on the front seat of the suspected car, about which all details had been telephoned from the border. Her only error lay in putting on the double-breasted coat, which she buttoned to the left as women close their coats, instead of the right as men do. The other car went at top speed to the lake and there the two men removed Whittaker's shoes and stockings and submerged the body to create the impression that his death was the result of heart failure induced by fear of drowning.

THE HUMAN BODY

By Dr. Logan Clendening

THE BLUES

WHAT mental state, "the blues," must be familiar to every one to every one at least who leads the higher life. Acute awareness of having made a fool of yourself leads to a general resume of what you are, followed by a comparative table of the difference between yourself as you are and as you expected to be by now on the day of your graduation from high school—and the river yawns. Everyone knows such moments, to say nothing of the times when no overt act can be held responsible for the state and it seems to have popped up out of the marshes and engulfed you. The old scars throb, the rebuffs of fate and fair ones are recalled.

These moments occur to all rational people. They are not a sign of insanity, as is often said. Shakespeare's Antonio expresses it, "The Merchant of Venice": "In sooth, I know not why I am so sad—how I caught it, found it or came by it. What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born, I am to learn."

And that much greater man of Shakespeare, Sir John Falstaff, says: "I am melancholy as a gilliflower."

What to do for them—that is the question? One school, of course, is perfectly materialistic and recommends a dose of senna or of salts. But I don't know. I am inclined to believe that only occasionally and only in small part are mental states dependent upon physical states in the ordinary experience of the term.

The students of a college turned in the following means they used to get rid of the "the blues":

"Take a brisk walk. Realize that the other person may have been right. Think of myself that I mustn't take life too seriously. Re-read an old favorite book. Read Shelley and Keats. Read something funny or go to a funny show."

Work so hard that it is impossible to think of anything else. Go down town and look at people and things. Play hockey or tennis and dance. Sleep them away. Talk things over with some friend who understands. Put on good clothes and go somewhere. Play it out on the piano or victrola. Try to make everybody think I'm feeling good and pretty soon I am.

"Cuss it out. Reason it out in solitude. Go hunting all by yourself. Start building castles in Spain. Drive an automobile fast and furiously on a lonely road. Get with people who are absolutely happy and carefree. Remember that tomorrow is another day."

Most of these it will be observed are forms of escape. They are good psychology. If the mind be filled with one thing there is no room for other things.

The blues are probably beneficial and desirable. They are good periods of self-examination. The cure of Rome is seen in experience. It imposes a period of self-examination. Perhaps "the blues" is the biological equivalent which nature imposes.

Hashed Brown Potatoes

It is difficult to hash brown potatoes at home as nicely as they are done in the restaurant, but this recipe proves very successful. Pare and dice very small six potatoes. Cover with boiling water and cook for eight minutes. Drain well. Put six tablespoons butter in a frying pan and when hot add potatoes and three tablespoons water from the boiling potatoes. Cover closely and when the water is absorbed press to one side of the pan in a mound and cook slowly until nicely browned. Remove with a cake turner, turning the underneath browned side on top. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and minced parsley.

Spots on Suede

Grease marks on suede shoes can be removed by rubbing the spots with fine emery paper. This will bring up the nap again and make the spots disappear.

When Wallace Beery Looks Over the Studios

By Margaret Post Nienmeyer

HE DOES IT

Sketches by Marguerite Martyn

Six Thousand Feet in the Air From His Plane

MR. BEERY AND MARGARET NIENMEYER ABOUT TO SEE HOLLYWOOD FROM THE AIR.

HOLLYWOOD, March 1. I'm right at this moment anyone should suddenly pop the question, "What was the biggest thrill of your life?" at me, I'd certainly pop right back at them without pausing for thought, "Airplane flying with Wallace Beery." And should the next question be, as it would—for no one believes a movie actor can do anything but act, and there are those who doubt even that—but does he really pilot his plane himself? And slipping into the vernacular of the studio, I would emphatically assure them with "I'll say he does, and HOW!"

For Wallace Beery, the famous comedian of the screen, is a licensed transport pilot and has over 500 hours of actual flying to his credit.

So some day when you hear the whirling of a motor overhead, and on glancing up you see a beautiful, big, blue-bodied, red-winged monoplane with the Government identification number 9215 on it, you may be sure it is Wally, as everyone here calls him, in his luxurious eight-passenger plane.

There is no publicity stunt about Mr. Beery's flying. He is one of those rare birds in Hollywood, a movie actor who cares nothing about seeing his name in the papers except in connection with his current starring film. He comes from Missouri, you know, having been born on a farm in the western part of the State and to his brother, Noah, went to school in Kansas City. Among their classmates was Jesse James Jr. Wallace's first experience in stage work was in the stock company his brother was working in in Kansas City. Later, upon discovering that he possessed a good singing voice, he obtained a job in musical comedy in New York City and then started in motion pictures in that city as a comedian and appeared in a long series of films as a Swedish housemaid. He went to Los Angeles with Mack Sennett and continued in comedies out here. His first dramatic picture was Marshall Neilan's "The Unpardonable Sin." That was the beginning of his career which has placed him among the very select few at the top of the list of character actors. Since then he has played, among others, in "Behind the Door," "The Spanish Dancer," "The Devil's Cargo," "Adventure," "In the Name of Love," "Rugged Water," "The Pony Express," "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now," "Fireman Save My Child," "Now We're in the Air," "Life Savers" and "Partners in Crime."

Mr. Beery is six feet, one inch tall and weighs 235 pounds. He has light brown hair and eyes, and is an ardent hunter and fisherman as well as a most enthusiastic airman.

I had never made a flight before, so as I went to the Paramount studio by appointment to meet Mr. Beery, I'll admit I was hoping I would not become ill or frightened as I'd heard some persons do.

Mr. Beery was ready but before we started I had to make a signed affidavit that I was making the flight by my own wish, and at my own risk. This preliminary over we started off for the flying field in Mr. Beery's new sedan, Mr. Beery at the wheel. On the floor of the car lay three new books, "Life and Death in Sing-Sing" by the warden, "Hagputin," by Rene Miller and "Once a Clown Always a Clown," by De Wolf Hopper. This may give you an idea of the wide range in Mr. Beery's choice of reading matter.

Out we sped over Hollywood's lovely boulevards, past the homes of hundreds of screen favorites, till at last we came to Clover Field, where he keeps his plane. After watching the sturdy capable hands and observing the quick thinking of Mr. Beery on that ride out, for traffic in Hollywood is the wildest maelstrom I've ever seen, all thought of fear vanished and I knew that I could rely on his ability and judgment as a pilot in the air as well as on land.

REACHING the field we walked over to the hangar where his plane was waiting, a beautiful blue bird it looked with outspread wings of red. Beside it, in grim contrast, stood a battered old gray plane, a death's head, a coffin and an extinguished candle painted in black on its body. This tragic ship had been flown by that courageous and dashing young Frenchman, Col. Charles Nungesser, during the war.

We stepped into Mr. Beery's plane, and quite a step it was, too, and to our amazement we found we had just stepped out of one luxury into another. The cabin of the plane, upholstered in a soft velvety gray, was divided, one might say, into three compartments. At the front was the pilot's seat with a passenger seat beside it, and directly behind these were two other separate passenger seats. Back of these, all along one side, was a long cushioned seat capable of holding four persons comfortably, or it may be used as a sleeping berth. Behind all this is a separate compartment with lavatory, ice water, cupboards and other conveniences. The appointments are perfect. Exquisitely signed silver fittings slip into soft gray suede pockets and cigarette lighters and ash trays are attached at comfortable angles.

Mr. Beery seated himself at the control and I took my place directly behind him. A young mechanic cranked the plane, not at the front where I've always seen it done, and where instant death seem to threaten, but at the left side where he was well out of the way of the big propeller which soon began its gigantic purring. A few minutes of warming up and we started off rolling gently along a perfect field on our huge rubber tires, and so smooth was our contact with the earth that when we left it for the air the only perception of it came from watching the rapidly receding ground.

It was a queer sensation. I felt no motion forward, only mounting and mounting like going up an elevator, and as I looked below at the distant earth my only reaction seemed to be that, inherited probably from some very distant ancestor, I found that I was gripping my toes just as hard as ever I could, apparently in some desire to cling to something.

This desire soon passed, however, and was entirely forgotten in the watching of the ever-changing panorama below. Los Angeles, Hollywood, the studios, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica and all the surrounding country lay outspread like a huge map beneath us, the straight boulevards cutting wide definite thoroughfares through the canyons of tall buildings from one end to the other.

But soon a greater thrill—Mr. Beery flew high above the amusement park and pier at Santa Monica and on and on out over the green ocean which, at that distance, looked exactly like a sheet of lovely crackle-glass, and the boats like funny little nut shells bobbing up and down. We passed over the beach homes of Bebe Daniels, Marion Davies, the Tallmadges and scores of others. But the greatest thrill of all was flying over the tops of the mountains, and on looking directly down on them to find crystal clear lakes nestling snugly in their crevices, and to see the splendidly built roads winding their tortuous ways to their very tops. And I saw what I thought in my ignorance to be a particularly fine road extending all along the top of the entire range, only to have Mr. Beery shout to me that it was a "fire break," to prevent the spread of the dread and destructive forest fires. As we flew over these jagged peaks and deep canyons I'll admit I hoped nothing would break, and I think my toes began to curl up a little again.

Then back to the city, we circled the tall radio towers of Warner Brothers and the celestial pianos of Grauman's Chinese Theater. We saw First National's studio in a hillside at Burbank and Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's, too. Flying low over Fox studio we could see bits of outdoor sets which looked much like a Noah's Ark village, and Paramount's yellowish buildings looked very neat and orderly ranged around its conventional garden.

At one time I asked Mr. Beery what our altitude was, and was amazed to have him answer "a little over 6,000 feet," and that we were traveling at the rate of 140 miles an hour. I would almost have sworn that I was not even moving.

Of course, the plane being entirely enclosed, one feels no rush of air to give an idea of speed, but as glass windows form almost all the enclosure, just as in a limousine, one's view is never impaired.

To Wash Chamois Skin

MANY housewives do not wash chamois skins under the supposition that they always get "so hard and stiff and are unfit for use." However, if properly washed, a chamois will remain soft and flexible and continue to give good service. So whenever the chamois skin becomes soiled wash it. There are several good ways to do this and here is one:

Add one tablespoonful of ammonia to one quart lukewarm water and soak chamois in this. Squeeze or rub gently with a medium stiff brush. Renew water as soon as it becomes soiled, lessening the amount of ammonia each time. Pull the skin carefully into shape and dry in a medium temperature. It would be well to gently stretch the chamois while drying. When dry rub between the hands and pull it in all directions until soft and flexible.

Cheese and Tomato Toast

One small can tomatoes, one tablespoon cornstarch, one cup chipped sharp cheese, one teaspoon chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon grated onion, salt and pepper. Bring tomatoes, onion, parsley and seasoning to a boil. Add cornstarch mixed with a little cold water and boil three minutes. Put rounds of toast on a flat baking dish and pour over them the tomato. Sprinkle with cheese and place in the oven until the cheese has melted. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Mr. Beery was ready but before we started I had to make a signed affidavit that I was making the flight by my own wish, and at my own risk. This preliminary over we started off for the flying field in Mr. Beery's new sedan, Mr. Beery at the wheel. On the floor of the car lay three new books, "Life and Death in Sing-Sing" by the warden, "Hagputin," by Rene Miller and "Once a Clown Always

Fears also were expressed in some quarters that recent advances in the price of metal might, if carried far, result in a marked lightening of consumer demands.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—A House bill extending the life of the Radio Commission as an administrative body was passed last night by the Senate with a modification that the commission be continued only until Dec. 31 of this year rather than for a full year. The House today accepted the changes and the measure passed to the President.

Acceptance of the Dec. 31 compromise ended another legislative session which had provoked a riot earlier in the night of Congress to invoke the cloture rule to end debate.
